18TH YEAR. NO. 123.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1901.

TWO CENTS.

LEONARD'S PLURALITY NOW PLACED AT 57

Deputy Election Supervisors
Found Some Irregularities
In the Count.

CALLED UP SECRETARY LAYLIN

Who Advised Them to Accept the Statement of Election Board.

OFFICIAL COUNT NOT FINISHED

A Change of 10 Votes in the First Precinct, First Ward, Made the Difference in Leonard's Plurality.
Other Matters.

Lisbon, November 7.—(Special)—The election board of the first precinct, Fourth ward, of East Liverpool, was summoned to appear before the supervisors of election. On the vote for sheriff only a small part of the total votes reported were tallied.

The board explains that there were 89 straight Republican votes and 88 Democratic votes. When they came to the sheriff they did not tally the straight votes, but only the scratched votes.

Secretary of State Laylin was called over the phone and advised the board of supervisors to accept the statement of the judges and clerks that there was a total of 96 for Noragon and 201 for Leonard. Secretary of State Laylin sharply reproved them for carelessness.

The supervisors also find that Negley had reported more votes than are on the poll books. The vote is as given yesterday except in the case of Liverpool, first precinct, first ward. Where it is 171 instead of 181 or Noragon.

The supervisors are not through with the work on sheriff, but it is thought Leonard's official plurality will be 57.

ILLEGAL VOTES

It Is Claimed Some Parties Who Had
No Right Voted in This City.

Charges that are being made by different persons in the city who claim to know positively what they are talking about, will, it is believed, lead to an investigation that may cause serious trouble for somebody. It is alleged that several illegal votes were cast in the city, and it is for this reason that an investigation is being talked of.

It is alleged that one vote was cast at the city hall by a man who has not been in the state two weeks. He was not challenged at the polls, but several persons saw him vote who claim to know positively that he had no right to do so. It is said he was taken to the polls by a party of Democrats.

The claim is also made that illegal votes were cast in the West End, one of the voters being a foreigner who has never received his naturalization papers. Several others are said to have violated the election laws by voting here, while their real place of residence is across the river. However, it is thought that only the one case—that of the man voting illegally at the city hall—will be investigated at the present time.

ELECTION SUPERVISORS

Severely Criticized the Methods Employed in Several of the Voting Precincts.

Lisbon, November 7.—(Special)—The board of deputy supervisors of elections, consisting of C. A. Ferguson, chairman; J. H. Aten, J. A. Martin and W. G. Bentley, met last night.

The official count on sheriff will be delayed until certificates are received from two or three precincts in which careless tallying was done.

The board severely criticized the methods employed in a number of precincts. Several judges and clerks will be summoned to appear in person before the board.

A MISTAKE

Sheriff Noragon Was Given Ten Votes Too Many in a City Precinct.

In the first precinct of the first ward one of the clerks made an error of 10 in totaling, thereby giving Noragon 17 of a plurality over Leonard.

The mistake was a natural one and was soon rectified.

A wild rumor was going the rounds this morning to the effect that in the first precinct of the Fourth a mistake of 100 votes had been made in the count for sheriff.

The fact that the error was said to have been made in Leonard's favor, and as this would, if true, have changed the entire result, a sensation was at once created.

The rumor was evidently started by some practical joker, since it was proven to be without foundation.

AN ERROR FOUND

PRECINCT.

The Judges And Clerks From the Fourth Ward Summoned to Lisbon.

Among the precincts in which errors were found by the county supervisors of election was the First precinct of the Fourth ward in this city.

All the election officers of this precinct, consisting of Leroy Orr, presiding judge, and James H. Tracy, Joseph O'Reilly, Frank Gallimore, judges, with the two clerks, W. T. Martin and James Nagle, were summoned to Lisbon this morning, where they will appear before the supervisors. The local officers are of the opinion that the error is a slight one, and will require but a short time to straighten out.

The Fourth ward parties were not apprised of the nature of the irregularity, but think it is in the plan adopted by the clerks in tallying. It has been customary at this particular voting place to gather all the straight tickets in the box and count them by fives. Where this plan is pursued the tally is carried out on the sheet opposite the name at the head of each of the party tickets for which the straight ballots are cast. The remainder of the names on the ticket are left blank until the count is finished and then the totals of the remaining candidates are made to correspond with the number at the head of the ticket.

In this manner much time is saved and the election officers insist that the counting is just as accurate as though a mark was registered every time the name of a candidate is called out.

The judges and clerks will return home this evening.

TO NEW CUMBERLAND

Junior Mechanics Will Pay the West Virginia Council a Fraternal Visit.

Arrangements are being made by the local council Junior Mechanics to attend a meeting of the New Cumberland lodge next Thursday evening. Invitations have been issued by the latter organization to all councils in this section and it is the intention to make the occasion an interesting one.

The secret work will be exemplified and after the business of the evening has been disposed of a social session will be held.

NO. 8 HONORED

Member of Pride of the East Council Gets an Appointment.

George A. Goppert, past councillor of the Pride of the East council No. 8, Junior Mechanics, has received his commission as deputy state councillor for this district.

The appointment was made by State Councillor Rinehart Schwald, of Cincinnati, who was elected at the recent convention held in this city. Mr. Goppert is one of the most active American Mechanics in this part of the state, and will look after the duties of his new position with credit to his council.

Died in Washington.

Lisbon, November 7.—(Special)—Evan Gray, for many years employed in the government printing office, died at Washington this morning. He will probably be brought here for burial.

Authorized to Sell.

Lisbon, November 7.—(Special)—M. J. McGarry, administrator, is authorized to sell at private sale within one month, all personal property of Amelia Wassignara.

CHEAPER BOOKS FOR ALL PUPILS

A Bill to Be Introduced in the Next Legislature to This End.

MANY COMMUNICATIONS

Bearing on Subjects of Vital Importance to Local And Sister Unions Were Received And Acted Upon.
Attendance Unusually Large.

The attendance at Trades Council last night was the best in many months.

When President McLane called for a report from the credential committee the following new applicants were reported favorably upon:

L. L. Applegate, No. 21; A. L. Allison, E. M. Pratt, No. 165; Painters and Decorators; Ross Webb, No. 29, Dish-makers.

The stogie workers' national organization asked that a committee be appointed to make a canvass of a number of retail establishments. It is known that several firms are handling unfair goods and an effort will be made to have this changed. The committee is composed of Leroy Orr, A. E. Bertele and Robert Buchanan.

The Central Labor Union, of San Francisco, had a communication before the local organization asking endorsement for the shipbuilders in their recent troubles. The request was complied with and the council will appeal to President Roosevelt in behalf of the shipbuilders' union.

The Carriage and Wagonmakers' union, of Cincinnati, which is on strike, asked for aid and were voted $5.

The local body was informed through a communication from the lady garment workers that the firm of Loomer Bros., New York, was unfair. A committee, consisting of Henry Moore, Miss Maloney and George Grim was appointed to acquaint the merchants of the city of the fact that the firm is non-union.

The resignation of C. J. McHugh, of Typographical union No. 318, as recording secretary, was accepted after the gentleman had been tendered a vote of thanks. Claud C. Smith was elected to succeed Mr. McHugh.

Leroy Orr was selected to represent the council at the convention of the American Federation of Labor to be held at Scranton, Pa.

The legislative committee made a partial report on the school book question. The committee hoped to have a bill ready soon to be presented to the next legislature, which will insure a better and cheaper school book system.

WEARING WAR PAINT

Joe Woolley, While Doing a "Big In-jun" Act, Was Captured By
"Pale Faces."

In answer to a telephone call this afternoon Officers Morris and Mahoney went to Woolley's boat house, near the flint mill, where they found Joe Woolley wearing war paint and doing an Indian dance.

The hostile celebrity was promptly collared and a moment later he was enjoying a ride in the "boozers" barouche.

On his arrival at the city hall he was dumped out like a saw log to an iron cage. He will dance for Mayor Davidson in the morning.

Marriage Licenses.

Lisbon, November 7.—(Special)—Marriage licenses have been granted to the following persons:

Dr. Charles John Harrison and Edna Ellen Plunkett, East Liverpool.
James L. Welch and Lillian E. Dunn, East Liverpool.

Adopted a Child.

Lisbon, November 7.—(Special)—John G. Baker and wife petitioned probate court yesterday to adopt Raymond Hildebrand, aged 5. The child was taken from the Franklin county children's home.

STRIKERS TO GET BACK THE MONEY PAID TO MAYOR DENNIS FOR FINES

Lisbon, November 7.—(Special)—Patrick O'Connor and Harry Kirkbride were fined at Wellsville at the time of the strike under the state law. Mayor Dennis then had them arrested and fined under the city ordinance

WALKER SOCIETY IS IN A FLUTTER

Arrest of Amanda Orr Stirs the Classic Precinct to a Fever Pitch.

SCANDAL IN HIGH LIFE

Mrs. Ida Ammon Makes Sensational Charges, Thought to Be the Outcome of a Feud Which Has Long Existed—Trial Tonight.

The elite of Walkers is much wrought up as a result of the arrest of Amanda Orr, a resident of that classic precinct, who is to be tried in Justice McCarron's court this evening on two charges. Constable Powell made the arrest last night.

It is the belief of those who are familiar with Mrs. Orr's case that her present trouble has been brought about as the climax of a feud which has long existed and which has kept society in the vicinity of her domicile in a constant flutter.

Justice McCarron refused today to discuss the merits of the case, as he feels that any undue comment may tend toward a greater eruption than has already been caused. The affidavits which Mrs. Ammon filed against Mrs. Orr charge the defendant with unlawful trespass and the use of profane and threatening language.

The warrants were made out last evening and Constable Powell was immediately sent to Mrs. Orr's home. He found the woman waiting for him, but owing to a severe illness she was unable to accompany the officer to the magistrate's office.

It was suspected by the constable that the woman was shamming and he did not leave the house until he had fully satisfied himself as to the nature of her illness. Mrs. Orr showed good cause for refusing to leave her home and was allowed to remain on her promise to appear for trial tonight. The case will be heard at 7 o'clock.

It is said that the appearance of the officer at Walkers last night created a tremendous commotion, and it is thought a large crowd of the many friends of the accused woman will be present at the trial.

TO THE COUNTY JAIL

EDWARD DINERSTEIN WAS TAK-EN BY CHIEF THOMPSON.

The Accused Boy Apparently Not Disturbed Over His Present Misfortune.

Edward Dinerstein, who was bound over to common pleas court a few days ago by Mayor Davidson on a serious charge, was this morning taken to the county jail by Chief Thompson. The parents of the boy were at the city prison to bid him good bye.

Albert Dinerstein, father of the boy, will probably make an attempt to prove that his son's mind is affected. He claims that the boy sustained a fall some years ago which unbalanced his reason and asserts positively that he has never fully recovered. Dinerstein claims that he can produce evidence of reliable physicians to substantiate his statements.

DEPARTMENT COMMANDER

E. F. Taggart, of the G. A. R., to Visit Local Post.

The meeting of General Lyon post No. 44, G. A. R., to be held tomorrow evening, promises to be one of unusual interest.

Department Commander E. F. Taggart, of Akron, will pay an official visit to the city tomorrow and Post Commander J. N. Rose is making an especial effort to get out a good attendance at the meeting.

Commander Rose anticipates that the meeting will be one of the most interesting held in many years. He is particularly anxious that all members of the Woman's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans arrange to be present, and arrangements have been made to entertain them.

HOME GUARDS

McKINLEY HOME SELECTED AS NAME OF LODGE.

New Local Lodge Instituted and Eighty-eight Members Were Initiated.

McKinley home, No. 75, of the Home Guards of America, is the name by which a new fraternal and insurance order will be known that was organized last night in this city. Eighty-eight charter members were taken into the new order, and it is predicted that the membership will be doubled within a short period.

Supreme Manager George H. Detlor and Deputy Organizer Z. Z. Brandon, of Van Wert, have been in the city for several weeks, and it is due to their efforts that the lodge was organized.

The Home Guards, though a comparatively new organization, is rapidly gaining a strong footing throughout the country, and the fact that the local lodge has an unusually large membership to start with is significant that it will be a growing one.

The candidates met at the lodge room in the Potters' bank building, where Messrs. Detlor and Brandon performed the initiatory work. Mr. Detlor called the meeting to order and made a somewhat lengthy address in which he gave a history of the organization.

The Home Guards of America, with headquarters at Van Wert, was organized February 10, 1899. In addition to the fraternal features, the order has an insurance feature which is the main cause for its unusual growth. In addition to the death benefits, each member is entitled to one-fourth of the amount of his or her policy in case of the loss of a hand, foot or eye, and in case of permanent disability a member can draw one-tenth of the amount of their policy each year until all is drawn out. On the death of a member $100 is advanced immediately.

The fraternal features were explained in detail, after which F. E. Grosshans was made temporary secretary and the work of initiation begun. After the necessary obligations had been taken by the candidates, the members were made familiar with the secret workings of the order. The ritualistic work was sublimely impressive.

Officers were elected as follows: Counselor—Joseph Cordingley. Vice Counselor—H. W. Herron. Past Counselor—F. E. Grosshans. Chaplain—Mrs. Hannah Gould. Secretary—Miss Maude McDole. Guide—Mrs. Cora M. Pilgrim. Conductor—John W. Herron. Second Shield—Mrs. Effie J. Pilgrim.

First Shield—R. S. Hutchinson. Trustees—Mrs. C. E. Blackmore, Dr. F. F. Davis and Dr. W. A. Hobbs.

F. E. Grosshans has been appointed by the supreme body to act as financial collector.

Another meeting will be held next Wednesday evening, at which time 20 other candidates will be initiated. As yet the order has not arranged for a permanent place of meeting, but this will be done in the near future.

AN ACCIDENT AT WHEELING

In Which He Sustained a Severe
Leg and

WAS VERY SEVERELY INJURED

Taken to the City Hospital at Wheeling And Is Now Resting Well.
Mrs. Lynch Was Notified This Morning.

W. C. Lynch, who travels for the Homer Laughlin China company, was seriously injured in a runaway at Wheeling Wednesday afternoon.

The rig that figured in the accident was owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Issett, of North Main street, Wheeling, who had invited Mr. and Mrs. William Schwetfeger and their friend, Mr. Lynch, for a drive on the National boulevard. As the party was returning to the city via the Peninsula the horses became frightened at a passing train and dashed madly down the hill toward the sharp turn under the railroad crossing near the Peninsula Cemetery entrance. Mrs. Issett was driving, but Mr. Schwetfeger relieved her of the reins and did all in his power to prevent a catastrophe. At the foot of the hill a coal cart was met and in attempting to pass it the trap struck the board walk in front of the cemetery and a bad wreck resulted. All four occupants were thrown to the ground and the trap was almost a total wreck, while the horses, becoming disengaged continued on their mad flight.

Mr. Lynch was badly injured, sustaining a severe fracture of his left leg and a sprain of one arm beside many bruises over his body. He was taken to the city hospital in the city ambulance and this morning was resting easy. The balance of the occupants of the vehicle were severely but not seriously injured.

Mrs. Lynch was notified of the accident this morning, and left on the early train for Wheeling.

CARNEGIE LIBRARY

Last Been Removed From
the Windows.

The cheese cloth coverings have been removed from the windows of the Carnegie library building and some of the windows have already been put in position.

Plasterers have about completed their portion of the work and are today finishing up the circular room at the north end of the structure. They will then be busy for a day or two in the basement. The electric wiring is finished until the building is ready for the lighting fixtures.

Men are now dressing the large pieces of stone which will soon be in place about the yard in service as curbing, flagging and pavement.

National Banks of the City Have Received a Number of New $10 Bills.

The national banks of the city have received a number of the new series of $10 bills issued by the treasury department.

The bills are known as the "Buffalo bills." The center is a fine engraving of a buffalo and on the back is an allegorical picture representing peace and prosperity. They will be put in circulation in a month.

MAY BE TROUBLE

A Number of Disputes to Be Settled at the New Castle
Pottery.

President A. S. Hughes, of the Brotherhood, has arrived home from New Castle, where he was summoned to endeavor to settle several disputes in the biscuit and glost ware houses and also in the clay shops.

His efforts were unsuccessful, and the questions will go before the arbitration board.

This body will meet either tomorrow or Monday.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1901.

TWO CENTS.

LEONARD'S PLURALITY NOW PLACED AT 57

Deputy Election Supervisors
Found Some Irregularities
In the Count.

CALLED UP SECRETARY LAYLIN

Who Advised Them to Accept the Statement of Election
Board.

OFFICIAL COUNT NOT FINISHED

A Change of 10 Votes in the First
Precinct, First Ward, Made the Difference in Leonard's Plurality.
Other Matters.

Lisbon, November 7.—(Special)—The election board of the first precinct, Fourth ward, of East Liverpool, was summoned to appear before the supervisors of election. On the vote for sheriff only a small part of the total votes reported were tallied.

The board explains that there were 89 straight Republican votes and 88 Democratic votes. When they came to the sheriff they did not tally the straight votes, but only the scratched votes.

Secretary of State Laylin was called over the phone and advised the board of supervisors to accept the statement of the judges and clerks that there was a total of 96 for Noragon and 201 for Leonard. Secretary of State Laylin sharply reproved them for carelessness.

The supervisors also find that Negley had reported more votes than are on the poll books. The vote is as given yesterday except in the case of Liverpool, first precinct, first ward. Where it is 171 instead of 181 or Noragon.

The supervisors are not through with the work on sheriff, but it is thought Leonard's official plurality will be 57.

ILLEGAL VOTES

Charges that are being made by different persons in the city who claim to know positively what they are talking about, will, it is believed, lead to an investigation that may cause serious trouble for somebody. It is alleged that several illegal votes were cast in the city, and it is for this reason that an investigation is being talked of.

The claim is also made that illegal votes were cast in the West End, one of the voters being a foreigner who has never received his naturalization papers. Several others are said to have violated the election laws by voting here, while their real place of residence is across the river. However, it is thought that only the one case—that of the man voting illegally at the city hall—will be investigated at the present time.

ELECTION SUPERVISORS

Eighty-eight charter members were taken into the new order, and it is predicted that the membership will be doubled within a short period.

Supreme Manager George H. Detlor and Deputy Organizer Z. Z. Brandon, of Van Wert, have been in the city for several weeks, and it is due to their efforts that the lodge was organized.

The Home Guards, though a comparatively new organization, is rapidly gaining a strong footing throughout the country, and the fact that the local lodge has an unusually large membership to start with is significant that it will be a growing one.

The candidates met at the lodge room in the Potters' bank building, where Messrs. Detlor and Brandon performed the initiatory work. Mr. Detlor called the meeting to order and made a somewhat lengthy address in which he gave a history of the organization.

The Home Guards of America, with headquarters at Van Wert, was organized February 10, 1899. In addition to the fraternal features, the order has an insurance feature which is the main cause for its unusual growth. In addition to the death benefits, each member is entitled to one-fourth of the amount of his or her policy in case of the loss of a hand, foot or eye, and in case of permanent disability a member can draw one-tenth of the amount of their policy each year until all is drawn out. On the death of a member $100 is advanced immediately.

The fraternal features were explained in detail, after which F. E. Grosshans was made temporary secretary and the work of initiation begun. After the necessary obligations had been taken by the candidates, the members were made familiar with the secret workings of the order. The ritualistic work was sublimely impressive.

Officers were elected as follows: Counselor—Joseph Cordingly. Vice Counselor—H. W. Herron. Past Counselor—F. E. Grosshans. Chaplain—Mrs. Hannah Gould. Secretary—Miss Maude McDole. Guide—Mrs. Cora M. Pilgrim. Conductor—John W. Herron. Second Shield—Mrs. Emma J. Pilgrim.

First Shield—R. S. Hutchinson. Trustees—Mrs. C. E. Blackmore, Dr. F. F. Davis and Dr. W. A. Hobbs.

F. E. Grosshans has been appointed by the supreme body to act as financial collector.

Another meeting will be held next Wednesday evening, at which time 20 other candidates will be initiated. As yet the order has not arranged for a permanent place of meeting, but this will be done in the near future.

AN ACCIDENT AT WHEELING

Leg and

WAS VERY SEVERELY INJURED

Taken to the City Hospital at Wheeling And is Now Resting Well.
Mrs. Lynch Was Notified This Morning.

W. C. Lynch, who travels for the Homer Laughlin China company, was seriously injured in a runaway at Wheeling Wednesday afternoon.

The rig that figured in the accident was owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Isett, of North Main street, Wheeling, who had invited Mr. and Mrs. William Schwertfeger and their friend, Mr. Lynch, for a drive on the National boulevard. As the party was returning to the city via the Peninsula the horses became frightened at a passing train and dashed madly down the hill toward the sharp turn under the railroad crossing near the Peninsula Cemetery entrance. Mrs. Isett was driving, but Mr. Schwertfeger relieved her of the reins and did all in his power to prevent a catastrophe. At the foot of the hill a coal cart was met and in attempting to pass it the trap struck the board walk in front of the cemetery and a bad wreck resulted. All four occupants were thrown to the ground and the trap was almost a total wreck, while the horses, becoming disengaged continued on their mad flight.

Mr. Lynch was badly injured, sustaining a severe fracture of his left leg and a sprain of one arm beside many bruises over his body. He was taken to the city hospital in the city ambulance and this morning was resting easy. The balance of the occupants of the vehicle were severely but not seriously injured.

Mrs. Lynch was notified of the accident this morning, and left on the early train for Wheeling.

CARNEGIE LIBRARY

Last Been Removed From
the Windows.

The cheese cloth coverings have been removed from the windows of the Carnegie library building and some of the windows have already been put in position.

Plasterers have about completed their portion of the work and are today finishing up the circular room at the north end of the structure. They will then be busy for a day or two in the basement. The electric wiring is finished until the building is ready for the lighting fixtures.

Men are now dressing the large pieces of stone which will soon be in place about the yard in service as curbing, flagging and pavement.

National Banks of the City Have Received a Number of New $10 Bills.

The national banks of the city have received a number of the new series of $10 bills issued by the treasury department.

The bills are known as the "Buffalo bills." The center is a fine engraving of a buffalo and on the back is an allegorical picture representing peace and prosperity. They will be put in circulation in a month.

Pottery.

President A. S. Hughes, of the Brotherhood, has arrived home from New Castle, where he was summoned to endeavor to settle several disputes in the biscuit and glost ware houses and also in the clay shops.

His efforts were unsuccessful, and the questions will go before the arbitration board.

This body will meet either tomorrow or Monday.

COMMENCED OPERATIONS IN A PRACTICAL WAY.

The Concern Has Many New Devices in the Way of Labor Saving Machinery.

The new plant of the Electric Porcelain company began operation this morning in a practical way at the works on Elm street.

A few insulators and knobs were turned out last week for samples, but this is the first regular turn in the shops.

Masons began work today on the second kiln. Although the first kiln has not been fired, kiln placers will fill it in a few days when the first batch of ware will be ready for the market. S. C. Dyke is the general manager.

A presser for the tubes and knobs is a very effective piece of machinery and Mr. Dyke's invention. It is operated by a woman who can turn out 19,200 tubes in 10 hours. When it is considered that the selling price of this ware ranges from $3.50 to $4 per thousand the value of a day's output from the machine is a large item.

A test of the insulating power of the tubes when burnt is made by immersing samples in hot water for 24 hours, after which the tubes must not have added over 2 per cent to their weight.

New process saggers are used which are an inch and a quarter in height. Clay for the ware is the Monessen white clay, while the spar and flint are obtained from a local plant. The insulators are very brittle and hard when burned, no glaze being required.

It is claimed that two boys can get up as much ware by the exclusive process of the Electric Porcelain company as is produced in other plants with 15 men.

An effort has been made in acquiring labor saving machines in which Mr. Dyke has especial confidence.

Had a Runaway Which Resulted in a Wheel Being Broken.

James Simpson, who resides north of Smith's Ferry, and a young man in his employ, were in a wagon behind a runaway team on Pennsylvania avenue this morning. They had come in with some produce and were driving out Pennsylvania avenue when the rattle of a wagon approaching very fast in the rear frightened the horses. They became unmanageable and in a turn to the side of the street a wheel was broken and both men thrown out. Mr. Simpson being picked up unconscious. He was found to be not dangerously hurt.

The horses broke loose from the wagon and were stopped about a block away.

Will Pack a Barrel.

STOPPED THE TRAIN

But the Garfield Youths Who Did It Found It Was an Expensive Business.

Salem, November 7.—A misunderstanding as to the arrangement for the special train which ran to Salem from Alliance last Saturday night for the big Republican rally cost three Garfield young men a good round sum of money. The train, in coming to Salem, stopped at Sebring, but not at Garfield. However, it was understood that on the return trip the train would stop at Garfield.

On the strength of this a large number of Garfield people came to Salem on train 43, which followed the special. On the return trip the train did not stop at Garfield, and seeing this some one pulled the bell cord, while another party is alleged to have thrown the emergency brake, stopping the train very suddenly.

Detectives were on the train and at once placed James Liber, John Brooks and James McGowan under arrest, charging them with the offense. Although the trio professed their innocence and the evidence was not incriminating, Squire Simon Card, of Smith township, found them guilty and fined McGowan $30, Liber $25 and Brooks $1. These were paid.

It is asserted that the train dispatcher at Pittsburg had assured the agent at Garfield that the train would stop there returning.

A CASE

That Will Interest Members of the Board of Health Now Being Heard By Judge Ambler.

Canton November 7.—The mandamus case from Massillon was heard partially before Judge Ambler in common pleas court Wednesday, in which T. Clark Miller asks to have the city ordered to pay him his salary as health officer.

The case involves the Burns law as it applies to boards of health and is of interest all over the state. The Burns law is that requiring a certificate that money is in fund before liabilities are created. The attorney general of the state has decided that the law does not apply to boards of health.

Briefs will be submitted later by the attorneys, after which Judge Ambler will render a decision.

NORTHERN PACIFIC SETTLEMENT

Said to Have Reached a Basis, but Details Are Yet to Be Arranged.

New York, Nov. 7.—Wednesday's stock market was dominated by the authoritative admissions from various quarters that the basis had been agreed upon for the settlement of the Northern Pacific controversy, although the reports of an early official announcement were deprecated, as it was said details remain yet to be arranged. The arrival from Europe Wednesday of W. K. Vanderbilt, who was named by Mr. Morgan as the final arbitrator of any differences upon which the conciliation board of directors might not be able to come to an agreement, helped to incite the large speculative buying, which was notable among all the trans-continental railways. The dealings in Union Pacific and St. Paul were on a scale to recall the days of the stock market boom in the spring of this year, and the resulting rise in St. Paul reached 4% and in Union Pacific 4%.

The Union Pacific convertible bonds were absorbed at the same time on an enormous scale. In Southern Pacific the rise reached 1 1/4; Great Northern preferred, 1 1/4; Atchison, 2%; and in Northwest, 3%. Northern Pacific fluctuated narrowly, thus suggesting that its present price is near to its valuation under the plan. The southwesterners and some of the southern stocks afforded another center of activity and strength, based on the series of extraordinary favorable returns of gross earnings for the fourth week in October. The southern railway stocks were also added by the vote of Cincinnati in favor of extending the lease of the Cincinnati Southern. A number of specialties were notably weak early in the day, including Sugar, Amalgamated Copper, Peoples Gas, American Ice and Metropolitan Street Railway, but except in Sugar and Amalgamated Copper there were strong recoveries. In Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis preferred, Wells Fargo, Pacific Coast, St. Lawrence and Adirondack, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh and Rutland preferred there were gains of 2 to 6 points. The additional gold engagements for export had but a momentary effect on the market and the monetary situation fell into the background completely as a market factor.

The large dealings in bonds centered in the Union Pacific and other convertible bond issues and speculative bonds. Total sales, par value, $6,370,000.

United States bonds were all unchanged on the last call.

SPECIAL FOR SATURDAY... NEW ENGLAND CRISP...

Watch our Window for other Leaders Saturday.

His One Daily Meal.

Dr. George Fordyce, the celebrated anatomist and lecturer on chemistry, used to eat one meal a day and one meal only, but it was a mighty one, washed down with liberal drafts of wine and beer. At 4 o'clock every day he used to enter a certain chophouse and take his seat at a table always reserved for him. A silver tankard containing a quart of strong ale, a full bottle of port and a quarter of a pint of brandy were placed before him immediately.

The moment the waiter announced the doctor's arrival the cook put a pound and a half of rump steak on the fire, and to while away the time until the steak should be properly broiled the waiter brought the doctor some tempting morsels like a broiled chicken or a plate of fish. When he had eaten this, Dr. Fordyce drank half of his brandy and then began on his steak. While eating the steak he drank the tankard of ale and after that the rest of the brandy. The waiter then worked the bottle of port, and the doctor proceeded slowly to enjoy it until it was all gone. He spent an hour and a half daily at his one meal and after it returned home to give his lectures on chemistry, which are still quoted as classics of that science. He ate nothing else until the next day, when he returned at the same hour to the same chophouse for the same sort of a meal. Dr. Fordyce lived to be sixty-six years old and kept up his one meal custom to the last.

Why the Joke Fell Flat.

A big, good natured farmer was awaiting the suburban train, accompanied by a handsome Gordon setter. Two sons of Britain stood near him. The dog strayed away from his owner, who was reading a newspaper.

"Hey!" called the farmer. "Come here, Locksmith," and the dog immediately ran to his feet. "May I ask," he said, "what you called that dog?"

"Locksmith," said the farmer. "And why, pray?" "Because every time I kick him he makes a bolt for the door."

There was a general laugh, in which the Englishman joined. When he returned to his companion, he remarked:

"Most extraordinary name that man over there calls his dog." "What?" asked his friend. "Locksmith," replied the first Briton. "And why such a name?"

"Because," he says, every time he kicks 'im he bolts for the door."—St. Louis Republic.

The Weight of Ice.

The ice man and the coalman are often suspected of giving short weights—maybe oftener suspected than guilty; maybe oftener guilty than suspected. The means of testing the weight of from ten to thirty pounds of ice are not always at hand in the house, but a close estimate of the weight can be reached by multiplying together the length, breadth and thickness of the block in inches and dividing the product by thirty. This will give very closely the weight in pounds. Thus, if a block of ice is 10 by 10 by 9, the product is 900, and this divided by thirty gives thirty pounds as the correct weight. A block 10 by 10 by 6 weighs twenty pounds. This simple method can be easily applied, and it may serve to remove unjust suspicion or to detect short weights.

French Railways.

Railways in France are forbidden to carry persons visibly or notoriously affected by contagious diseases in compartments that are used by the public. In the second place, the daily cleaning and the periodical disinfection of all cars are required. Linens of sleeping cars must bear a ticket indicating to the passenger the date of the last cleaning, and they must be properly washed and afterward subjected to a high temperature. Dry sweeping and dusting, which only serve to scatter disease germs, are prohibited, it being required that all floors, seats and woodwork be wiped with cloths moistened with some antiseptic solution.

Passed the Plate Too Late.

Mark Twain once declared that when a man makes an appeal for charity it is a great mistake to get everybody ready to give money and then not pass the hat.

"Some years ago in Hartford," he said, "we all went to the church on a hot, sweltering night to hear the annual report of Mr. Hawley, a city missionary who went around finding the people who needed help and didn't want to ask for it. He told of the life in the cellars where poverty resided. He gave instances of the heroism and devotion of the poor. The poor are always good to each other. When a man with millions gives, we make a great deal of noise. It's noise in the wrong place, for it's the widow's mite that counts.

"Well, Hawley worked me up to a great state. I couldn't wait for him to get through. I had $400 in my pocket. I wanted to give that and borrow more to give. You could see greenbacks in my eye. But he didn't pass the plate, and it grew hotter, and we grew sleepier. My enthusiasm went down, down, down, $100 at a time, till finally when the plate came round I stole 10 cents out of it. So you see a neglect like this may lead to crime."

Some Historical Fridays.

Friday, which is regarded as a day of ill luck by the rest of the world, ought to be considered the luckiest of all days for Americans.

Among the historic events that occurred on Friday are the discovery of America, Oct. 12, 1492, by Christopher Columbus, who had sailed Friday, Aug. 3, 1492. He returned on Friday and made the discovery of South America on Friday, June 12, 1494. John Cabot received his commission from Henry VIII on Friday, March 6, 1496, which resulted in the finding of North America. Mendez founded St. Augustine on Friday, Sept. 7, 1565. The Mayflower landed on Friday, Dec. 22, 1620. George Washington was born on Friday, Feb. 22, 1732. On Friday, June 16, 1775, Bunker Hill was seized and fortified. On Friday, Oct. 17, 1777, Burgoyne surrendered at Saratoga, and on Friday, Sept. 22, 1780, Arnold's treason was discovered. Then came the surrender of Cornwallis, also on Friday, and last, on Friday, July 7, 1776, John Adams moved in the Continental congress that the United States "are and ought to be independent."—London Express.

Not In Order.

In a certain Lanarkshire village a meeting was called to consider the advisability of erecting a bridge over a creek which had been heretofore crossed by means of stepping stones.

The schoolmaster, who presided over the meeting, warmly advocated the erection of a bridge in an eloquent speech, when a local worthy, who was something of a character and noted for his outspokenness, got up and interrupted:

"Toot, toot, schulemaister, you're fair halverin', mon! Wha wad gang an' put a brig over siccan a wee bit creek as yon? Losh, mon, I eud cross it wi' a stannin' jump!"

"Order, order!" exclaimed the chairman angrily. "You are clearly out of order."

"I ken I'm oot o' order," rejoined the interrupter amid the laughter of the audience. "If I was in order, I eud jump as faur again!"—London Answers.

Jumped on a Ten-Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger, druggist.

BOSTON CANDY KITCHEN.

His One Daily Meal.

Dr. George Fordyce, the celebrated anatomist and lecturer on chemistry, used to eat one meal a day and one meal only, but it was a mighty one, washed down with liberal drafts of wine and beer. At 4 o'clock every day he used to enter a certain chophouse and take his seat at a table always reserved for him. A silver tankard containing a quart of strong ale, a full bottle of port and a quarter of a pint of brandy were placed before him immediately.

The moment the waiter announced the doctor's arrival the cook put a pound and a half of rump steak on the fire, and to while away the time until the steak should be properly broiled the waiter brought the doctor some tempting morsels like a broiled chicken or a plate of fish. When he had eaten this, Dr. Fordyce drank half of his brandy and then began on his steak. While eating the steak he drank the tankard of ale and after that the rest of the brandy. The waiter then unscrewed the bottle of port, and the doctor proceeded slowly to enjoy it until it was all gone. He spent an hour and a half daily at his one meal and after it returned home to give his lectures on chemistry, which are still quoted as classics of that science. He ate nothing else until the next day, when he returned at the same hour to the same chophouse for the same sort of a meal. Dr. Fordyce lived to be sixty-six years old and kept up his one meal custom to the last.

A big, good natured farmer was awaiting the suburban train, accompanied by a handsome Gordon setter. Two sons of Britain stood near him. The dog strayed away from his owner, who was reading a newspaper.

"Hey!" called the farmer. "Come here, Locksmith," and the dog immediately ran to his feet.

One of the Englishmen approached the farmer.

"May I ask," he said, "what you called that dog?"

"Locksmith," said the farmer.

"And why, pray?"

"Because every time I kick him he makes a bolt for the door."

There was a general laugh, in which the Englishman joined.

When he returned to his companion, he remarked:

"Most extraordinary name that man over there calls his dog."

"What?" asked his friend.

"Locksmith," replied the first Briton.

"And why such a name?"

"Because," he says, every time he kicks 'im he bolts for the door."—St. Louis Republic.

The Weight of Ice.

The ice man and the coalman are often suspected of giving short weights—maybe oftener suspected than guilty; maybe oftener guilty than suspected. The means of testing the weight of from ten to thirty pounds of ice are not always at hand in the house, but a close estimate of the weight can be reached by multiplying together the length, breadth and thickness of the block in inches and dividing the product by thirty. This will give very closely the weight in pounds. Thus, if a block of ice is 10 by 10 by 9, the product is 900, and this divided by thirty gives thirty pounds as the correct weight. A block 10 by 10 by 6 weighs twenty pounds. This simple method can be easily applied, and it may serve to remove unjust suspicion or to detect short weights.

French Railways.

Railways in France are forbidden to carry persons visibly or notoriously affected by contagious diseases in compartments that are used by the public. In the second place, the daily cleaning and the periodical disinfection of all cars are required. Linens of sleeping cars must bear a ticket indicating to the passenger the date of the last cleaning, and they must be properly washed and afterward subjected to a high temperature. Dry sweeping and dusting, which only serve to scatter disease germs, are prohibited, it being required that all floors, seats and woodwork be wiped with cloths moistened with some antiseptic solution.

Passed the Plate Too Late.

Mark Twain once declared that when a man makes an appeal for charity it is a great mistake to get everybody ready to give money and then not pass the hat.

"Some years ago in Hartford," he said, "we all went to the church on a hot, sweltering night to hear the annual report of Mr. Hawley, a city missionary who went around finding the people who needed help and didn't want to ask for it. He told of the life in the cellars where poverty resided. He gave instances of the heroism and devotion of the poor. The poor are always good to each other. When a man with millions gives, we make a great deal of noise. It's noise in the wrong place, for it's the widow's mite that counts.

"Well, Hawley worked me up to a great state. I couldn't wait for him to get through. I had $400 in my pocket. I wanted to give that and borrow more to give. You could see greenbacks in my eye. But he didn't pass the plate, and it grew hotter, and we grew sleepier. My enthusiasm went down, down, down, $100 at a time, till finally when the plate came round I stole 10 cents out of it. So you see a neglect like this may lead to crime."

Some Historical Fridays.

Friday, which is regarded as a day of ill luck by the rest of the world, ought to be considered the luckiest of all days for Americans.

Among the historic events that occurred on Friday are the discovery of America, Oct. 12, 1492, by Christopher Columbus, who had sailed Friday, Aug. 3, 1492. He returned on Friday and made the discovery of South America on Friday, June 12, 1494. John Cabot received his commission from Henry VIII on Friday, March 8, 1498, which resulted in the finding of North America. Mendez founded St. Augustine on Friday, Sept. 7, 1565. The Mayflower landed on Friday, Dec. 22, 1620. George Washington was born on Friday, Feb. 22, 1732. On Friday, June 10, 1775, Bunker Hill was seized and fortified. On Friday, Oct. 17, 1777, Burgoyne surrendered at Saratoga, and on Friday, Sept. 22, 1780, Arnold's treason was discovered. Then came the surrender of Cornwallis, also on Friday, and last, on Friday, July 7, 1776, John Adams moved in the Continental congress that the United States "are and ought to be independent."—London Express.

Not In Order.

In a certain Lanarkshire village a meeting was called to consider the advisability of erecting a bridge over a creek which had been heretofore crossed by means of stepping stones.

The schoolmaster, who presided over the meeting, warmly advocated the erection of a bridge in an eloquent speech, when a local worthy, who was something of a character and noted for his outspokenness, got up and interrupted:

"Hoof, toot, schulemaister, you're fair halverin', mon! Wha gang an' put a brig over siccan a wee bit creek as yon? Losh, mon, I cud cross it wi' a stannin' jump!"

"Order, order!" exclaimed the chairman angrily. "You are clearly out of order."

"I ken I'm oot o' order," rejoined the interrupter amid the laughter of the audience. "If I was in order, I cud jump as fair again!"—London Answers.

Jumped on a Ten-Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger, druggist.

CORAY MAY CONTEST

Charges of Fraud in Allegheny and Philadelphia Counties, Pennsylvania.

HARRIS HAS 52,360 PLURALITY

According to About Complete Returns, While Potter's Plurality Is Figured at About 47,939 — Constitutional Amendments Probably Carried.

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—The leaders of the Union party are contemplating the advisability of contesting the state election. State Chairman Ritter received a telegram from E. A. Coray regarding the opening of ballot boxes in Allegheny and Philadelphia, and after talking over the matter with his friends, said:

"The election for judge of the supreme court and state treasurer has not yet been decided, nor can it be until returns have been received, and not estimates.

"The actual returns in all instances show a Yerkes and Coray vote far in excess of the estimates sent over the wires last night, and I am confident that both of them will come to the city of Philadelphia with a majority.

"The fraud in Philadelphia has been so flagrant and extensive that the 100,000 people who voted for the Union ticket owe it to themselves to contest the election in the city of Philadelphia that the result obtained may be something like an accurate one. To permit this fraud to win is jeopardizing our institutions to the point of revolution.

Practically complete returns from the state give Harris (Rep.), for state treasurer, 52,360 plurality, and Potter (Rep.), for supreme court judge, 47,939 plurality. The official totals from the few counties in which the vote is incomplete will not materially alter the foregoing pluralities.

A number of counties have not yet completed the returns of the vote on the proposed constitutional amendments, but the figures received from two-thirds of the state indicate that the amendments carried by a big majority, although the aggregate vote on this question fell far below that cast for the state candidates. The total vote cast in the state will approximate 850,000. The total vote cast in the last election was 1,173,210. Two years ago the total vote was 790,501.

MIXED UP IN MARYLAND.

Democrats Control Senate—Republicans House—Gorman Has Majority on Joint Ballot.

Baltimore, Nov. 7.—Returns received in this city up to midnight last night, and including every county in the state, partly officially and partly estimated, indicated a result in the legislative contest which is almost without parallel in Maryland. The most careful estimates and calculations give the Democrats 46 delegates, and seven newly-elected senators, which, combined with the 10 who hold over in the senate, assures the friends of Mr. Gorman a total of 63 on joint ballot. The Republicans, it appears, have elected 49 delegates and six senators, which, added to their three hold-over senators, gives them a total of 58 on joint ballot. These figures indicate that the Republicans will be able to organize the house of delegates.

LOW BY NEARLY 30,000.

Unofficial Plurality, 29,864—Croker Makes a Denial.

New York, Nov. 7.—Complete unofficial returns from every district of Greater New York give Seth Low, Fusion candidate for mayor, 294,992, and Edward M. Shepard, Democratic candidate, 265,128, making Low's plurality 29,864.

Croker denies he has retired from politics. Among those sending congratulations.

A FITTING TRIBUTE

A Citizen of East Liverpool Pays a Well Earned Tribute.

The following public statement of a respected citizen adds one more emphatic endorsement of merit to the scores that have appeared before.

Mr. H. Thompson, of 306 Fourth street, presser at the D. E. McNicol pottery and resident of East Liverpool for the past 45 years, says: "During my campaign experiences between the years of '61 and '64, I contracted a weakness of the kidneys, and at intervals I had an aching pain across the small of my back, and was subject to attacks of muscular rheumatism, especially in damp weather. I was frequently so bad that I could scarcely get up when down, and in fact could hardly get around at all. I tried many remedies endeavoring to get rid of the trouble, but found nothing until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. pharmacy. They filled the bill exactly. They gave me almost immediate relief and warranted off the last attack."

Three Airships Will Race Next Year

By M. SANTOS-DUMONT

AERIAL NAVIGATION HAS NOW PROGRESSED SO FAR THAT I LOOK FORWARD TO A RACE AMONG AIRSHIPS THAT WILL BE FAR MORE EXCITING THAN THE AMERICAN YACHT RACES WHICH LIPTON TRIES SO HARD TO WIN. THE RACE WILL TAKE PLACE NEXT YEAR, AND ALREADY THREE AIRSHIPS ARE PRACTICALLY READY FOR IT.

These are the Santos-Dumont VI., the ship which M. Deutsch has finished and that which Georges Besancon is getting ready.

Some one is sure to offer a good prize. It will be quite easy to fire a gun and start the competing airships from the race course at Longchamps, then make a trip around the Eiffel tower and back to Longchamps, say, six times. That this can be done in favorable summer weather is clear to any one who has been studying aeronautics.

The Santos-Dumont VI. can be guided just as a man directs a horse with a bridle. Men are advancing in the science of aeronautics. THE AIRSHIP MAKES FASTER PROGRESS THAN DID THE LOCOMOTIVE WHEN THE LATTER WAS IN ITS INFANCY. At first the wisecracks shook their heads and said the airship was impossible. Now, while admitting its possibility and its actuality, they declare it to be impracticable. The locomotive had to fight its way similarly not so long ago.

Talking of accidents, they will shortly be fewer with airships than with automobiles. THE AIRSHIP RINGS THE DEATH-KNELL OF THE AUTOMOBILE. My first balloon was only a two horsepower; my present is twenty. Speed is a question of motor power. My motor does not weigh more than a pound for each horsepower. By choosing good days my airship can make sixty miles an hour.

My balloon has five coats of varnish. This makes it heavy, but science has not yet found a way to lessen the weight of varnish.

THE PROBLEM OF AERIAL NAVIGATION IS SOLVED. WE HAVE ONLY TO FOSTER ITS DEVELOPMENT.

IOWA.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 7.—Returns from the county auditors of Iowa indicate that the ultimate official vote will give A. B. Cummings, the Republican governor-elect, something like 90,000 plurality. Four-fifths of the counties have been heard from, and a conservative estimate of the vote indicates this result as quite certain. The returns on legislature are not complete, but the Republicans certainly have made good gains and increased their already large majority by 8 or 10.

NEW JERSEY.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 7.—The majority for Murphy (Rep.), for governor, grows as the detailed returns are filed with the various county clerks throughout the state. The returns have not all been filed, but Murphy's plurality over Seymour will be in excess of 17,500. The Republicans will control both houses of the legislature by majorities of more than 3 to 1.

RHODE ISLAND.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 7.—Complete returns from the 139 districts in the state give Gregory (Rep.), for governor, 26,242; Garvin (Dem.), 19,853. Gregory's plurality, 6,389, as against 8,859 last year. In the senate the Republicans have elected 31 members and the Democrats 7, and in the house the proportion is 51 Republicans to 4 Democrats.

KENTUCKY.

Louisville, Nov. 7.—Returns up to 12:30 o'clock this morning indicate next general assembly, which will elect a United States senator, will stand: Senate, 25 Democrats, 13 Republicans; house, 73 Democrats, 26 Republicans; one Independent Democrat.

Just to Avoid a Disturbance.

During a visit to the south of Italy a young Englishman was introduced at a fashionable gathering by a Neapolitan cavalier.

While there his gold snuffbox was taken from him. The next evening he was at another party when, to his surprise, he saw a gentleman take out his stolen snuffbox and help himself to a pinch of snuff. He quickly strode up to his friend and said:

"The gentleman over yonder is taking snuff out of the very box which was stolen from me yesterday. Do you happen to know him?"

"Hush," answered the cavalier in a tone of warning. "He is a person of high rank."

"What do I care?" exclaimed the Englishman. "I want my snuffbox and mean to call him to account."

After receiving this assurance the Englishman went home.

The following day, sure enough, his friend brought him the stolen box.

"How did you recover it?" inquired the Englishman.

"Well," said his friend, with a laugh, "I wished to avoid a disturbance, and therefore I simply stole it back again from him!"

A Wonderful Fan.

Mme. Pompadour had a wonderful fan. The lace cost about $30,000, and it took some years to make the five sections, each one containing a medallion so minute as to be almost invisible to the naked eye. It is now in existence, broken and apart, but still showing traces of its great beauty.

THE 25 ct. FAMILY DOCTOR.

CEDAR SPRINGS, MICH.

Mrs. Isaac Dunham, a well-known lady of that place, writes: "I cannot praise Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills too much. They did for me what doctors and other medicines could not do. I was troubled with severe disorders of the kidneys and enlargement of the liver. My family doctor treated me the whole of last winter, but did not help me very much, so I gave him up and began using Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. The result was simply wonderful. I am now strong and healthy again, thanks to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

EATON RAPIDS, MICH.

Mrs. Rose Chaffee, a business woman of Eaton Rapids, writes: "For a long time my system was in a terribly weakened state. Biliousness, severe indigestion and kidney troubles made me miserable that I was hardly able to work. A friend told me of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and I found them just as represented. They restored my health to me, and I think they are a wonderful medicine."

The marked success of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with Backache, Kidney Trouble, Constipation, Headache and Stomach Weakness make them a family requisite.

CORAY MAY CONTEST

Charges of Fraud in Allegheny and Philadelphia Counties, Pennsylvania.

HARRIS HAS 52,360 PLURALITY

According to About Complete Returns, While Potter's Plurality is Figured at About 47,939 — Constitutional Amendments Probably Carried.

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—The leaders of the Union party are contemplating the advisability of contesting the state election. State Chairman Ritter received a telegram from E. A. Coray regarding the opening of ballot boxes in Allegheny and Philadelphia, and after talking over the matter with his friends, said:

"The election for judge of the supreme court and state treasurer has not yet been decided, nor can it be until returns have been received, and not estimates.

"The actual returns in all instances show a Yerkes and Coray vote far in excess of the estimates sent over the wires last night, and I am confident that both of them will come to the city of Philadelphia with a majority.

"The fraud in Philadelphia has been so flagrant and extensive that the 100,000 people who voted for the Union ticket owe it to themselves to contest the election in the city of Philadelphia that the result obtained may be something like an accurate one. To permit this fraud to win is jeopardizing our institutions to the point of revolution.

Practically complete returns from the state give Harris (Rep.), for state treasurer, 52,360 plurality, and Potter (Rep.), for supreme court judge, 47,939 plurality. The official totals from the few counties in which the vote is incomplete will not materially alter the foregoing pluralities.

A number of counties have not yet completed the returns of the vote on the proposed constitutional amendments, but the figures received from two-thirds of the state indicate that the amendments carried by a big majority, although the aggregate vote on this question fell far below that cast for the state candidates. The total vote cast in the state will approximate 850,000. The total vote cast in the last election was 1,173,210. Two years ago the total vote was 790,501.

MIXED UP IN MARYLAND.

Democrats Control Senate—Republicans House—Gorman Has Majority on Joint Ballot.

Baltimore, Nov. 7.—Returns received in this city up to midnight last night, and including every county in the state, partly officially and partly estimated, indicated a result in the legislative contest which is almost without parallel in Maryland. The most careful estimates and calculations give the Democrats 46 delegates and seven newly-elected senators, which, combined with the 10 who hold over in the senate, assures the friends of Mr. Gorman a total of 63 on joint ballot. The Republicans, it appears, have elected 49 delegates and six senators, which, added to their three hold-over senators, gives them a total of 58 on joint ballot. These figures indicate that the Republicans will be able to organize the house of delegates.

LOW BY NEARLY 30,000.

Unofficial Plurality, 29,864—Croker Makes a Denial.

New York, Nov. 7.—Complete unofficial returns from every district of Greater New York give Seth Low, Fusion candidate for mayor, 294,992, and Edward M. Shepard, Democratic candidate, 265,128, making Low's plurality 29,864.

Croker denies he has retired from politics.

Among those sending congratulations.

AFITTING TRIBUTE

A Citizen of East Liverpool Pays a Well Earned Tribute.

The following public statement of a respected citizen adds one more emphatic endorsement of merit to the scores that have appeared before.

Mr. H. Thompson, of 306 Fourth street, presser at the D. E. McNicol pottery and resident of East Liverpool for the past 45 years, says: "During my campaign experiences between the years of '61 and '64, I contracted a weakness of the kidneys, and at intervals I had an aching pain across the small of my back, and was subject to attacks of muscular rheumatism, especially in damp weather. I was frequently so bad that I could scarcely get up when down, and in fact could hardly get around at all. I tried many remedies endeavoring to get rid of the trouble, but found nothing until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. pharmacy. They filled the bill exactly. They gave me almost immediate relief and warded off the last attack."

Three Airships Will Race Next Year

By M. SANTOS-DUMONT

AERIAL NAVIGATION HAS NOW PROGRESSED SO FAR THAT I LOOK FORWARD TO A RACE AMONG AIRSHIPS THAT WILL BE FAR MORE EXCITING THAN THE AMERICAN YACHT RACES WHICH LIPTON TRIES SO HARD TO WIN. THE RACE WILL TAKE PLACE NEXT YEAR, AND ALREADY THREE AIRSHIPS ARE PRACTICALLY READY FOR IT.

These are the Santos-Dumont VI, the ship which M. Deutsch has finished and that which Georges Besancon is getting ready.

Some one is sure to offer a good prize. It will be quite easy to fire a gun and start the competing airships from the race course at Longchamps, then make a trip around the Eiffel tower and back to Longchamps, say, six times. That this can be done in favorable summer weather is clear to any one who has been studying aeronautics.

The Santos-Dumont VI can be guided just as a man directs a horse with a bridle. Men are advancing in the science of aeronautics. THE AIRSHIP MAKES FASTER PROGRESS THAN DID THE LOCOMOTIVE WHEN THE LATTER WAS IN ITS INFANCY. At first the wisecracks shook their heads and said the airship was impossible. Now, while admitting its possibility and its actuality, they declare it to be impracticable. The locomotive had to fight its way similarly not so long ago.

Talking of accidents, they will shortly be fewer with airships than with automobiles. THE AIRSHIP RINGS THE DEATH-KNELL OF THE AUTOMOBILE. My first balloon was only a two horsepower; my present is twenty. Speed is a question of motor power. My motor does not weigh more than a pound for each horsepower. By choosing good days my airship can make sixty miles an hour.

My balloon has five coats of varnish. This makes it heavy, but science has not yet found a way to lessen the weight of varnish.

THE PROBLEM OF AERIAL NAVIGATION IS SOLVED. WE HAVE ONLY TO FOSTER ITS DEVELOPMENT.

IOWA.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 7.—Returns from the county auditors of Iowa indicate that the ultimate official vote will give A. B. Cummings, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, something like 90,000 plurality. Four-fifths of the counties have been heard from, and a conservative estimate of the vote indicates this result as quite certain. The returns on legislature are not complete, but the Republicans certainly have made good gains and increased their already large majority by 8 or 10.

NEW JERSEY.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 7.—The majority for Murphy (Rep.), for governor, grows as the detailed returns are filed with the various county clerks throughout the state. The returns have not all been filed, but Murphy's plurality over Seymour will be in excess of 17,500. The Republicans will control both houses of the legislature by majorities of more than 3 to 1.

RHODE ISLAND.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 7.—Complete returns from the 139 districts in the state give Gregory (Rep.), for governor, 26,242; Garvin (Dem.), 19,853. Gregory's plurality, 6,389, as against 8,859 last year. In the senate the Republicans have elected 31 members and the Democrats 7, and in the house the proportion is 51 Republicans to 4 Democrats.

KENTUCKY.

Louisville, Nov. 7.—Returns up to 12:30 o'clock this morning indicate next general assembly, which will elect a United States senator, will stand: Senate, 25 Democrats, 13 Republicans; house, 73 Democrats, 26 Republicans; one Independent Democrat.

Just to Avoid a Disturbance.

During a visit to the south of Italy a young Englishman was introduced at a fashionable gathering by a Neapolitan cavalier.

While there his gold snuffbox was taken from him. The next evening he was at another party when, to his surprise, he saw a gentleman take out his stolen snuffbox and help himself to a pinch of snuff. He quickly strode up to his friend and said:

"Hush," answered the cavalier in a tone of warning. "He is a person of high rank."

"What do I care?" exclaimed the Englishman. "I want my snuffbox and mean to call him to account."

After receiving this assurance the Englishman went home.

The following day, sure enough, his friend brought him the stolen box.

"How did you recover it?" inquired the Englishman.

"Well," said his friend, with a laugh, "I wished to avoid a disturbance, and therefore I simply stole it back again from him!"

A Wonderful Fan.

Mme. Pompadour had a wonderful fan. The lace cost about $30,000, and it took some years to make the five sections, each one containing a medallion so minute as to be almost invisible to the naked eye. It is now in existence, broken and apart, but still showing traces of its great beauty.

THE 25 ct. FAMILY DOCTOR.

CEDAR SPRINGS, MICH.

Mrs. Isaac Dunham, a well-known lady of that place, writes: "I cannot praise Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills too much. They did for me what doctors and other medicines could not do. I was troubled with severe disorders of the kidneys and enlargement of the liver. My family doctor treated me the whole last winter, but did not help me very much, so I gave him up and began using Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. The result was simply wonderful. I am now strong and healthy again, thanks to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

EATON RAPIDS, MICH.

Mrs. Rose Chaffee, a business woman of Eaton Rapids, writes: "For a long time my system was in a terribly weakened state. Biliousness, severe indigestion and kidney troubles made me miserable that I was hardly able to work. A friend told me of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and I found them just as represented. They restored my health to me, and I think they are a wonderful medicine."

The marked success of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with Backache, Kidney Trouble, Constipation, Headache and Stomach Weakness make them a family requisite. 25 cts. a box.

Notice to Tax-Payers.

In pursuance of law, I, CHARLES E. SMITH, Treasurer of Columbiana county, hereby give notice to the Tax-Payers of said county, that the rates of taxation for the year 1901 are correctly stated in the following table showing the number of mills and hundredths of mills levied on each dollar of valuation of said county.

Statement showing the several rates of taxes and purposes for which levied on the taxable property of Columbiana county, Ohio, for the year 1901:

CIRCULATION STATEMENT.

The sworn paid circulation of the EVENING NEWS REVIEW, September 17, 1901, TWO THOUSAND ONE HUNDRED (2,100).

The average circulation since the statement of August 1, 1901, TWO THOUSAND AND THIRTY-FIVE (2,035).

A net gain since March 1, 1901, of
ONE THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED AND TWENTY-THREE (1,223) subscribers.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1901.

A report comes from Wyoming that a tract of 300,000 acres has been secured in that region on which it is proposed to locate a colony of Boers.
It is said that the prospective settlers are now being brought over. They will build irrigation ditches and raise sugar beets, besides carrying on other branches of rural industry. If the report is true, the sturdy Boers will be welcomed. They will not long be able to maintain a marked exclusivness in this land of ours, and it will be better for them and their posterity
if they cannot. Becoming "outland-ers" themselves, they may incidentally discover that America has become great simply through permitting that class an equal chance with her own people to get education, property and happiness.

America is fast becoming an industrial school for all the world. Year
by year greater numbers of foreigners flock here, not only from European countries, but from Asia, Africa and Australia, to learn American methods of work in mills, factories and machine shops. Great numbers of them remain here, but a considerable number return to their native lands, perhaps to carry Yankee ideas to spots to which modern progress is almost a stranger. The world is beginning to recognize that America leads
all the nations in mechanical skill
and inventive faculty, and is content
to sit at her feet and learn.

There are 3,234 election precincts
in the state of Ohio. By midnight of Tuesday the result of the election in a majority of them was known from one end of the state to the other,
such are the modern facilities for disseminating intelligence by means of the telephone and telegraph. Yet one occasionally hears an old fogey mourn for the days that are gone. They seem to regret that the world is not as slow as they are.

Andrew Carnegie sees no use for an isthmian canal. If Andrew had not disposed of his big manufacturing plants and retired from business, he would regard such a project in a very different light. One does not need to be very old to recall the days when
Mr. Carnegie was such a canal enthusiast that he was trying to turn a portion of Lake Erie into the Ohio river at Pittsburgh.

In a town in Marion county citizens have organized a club of sharpshooters, adopted a code of signals, and stand prepared to give any band of
safe-robbers a memorable reception.
It is an example other communities might copy with advantage. Nobody will miss a few dead robbers, while scores will sadly lament the looting
of the safes in which their valuables
are deposited.

New York is about as wicked a city
as any in the land, unless it is much maligned. And yet New York has proven that it is not necessary to leave the vicious and corrupt element in control of municipal affairs. The good people outnumber the bad in every community, and it is only necessary
for them to assert themselves to get the upper hand of hoodlums and cor-ruptionists.

Boats coming from the Yukon country bring loads of luckless individuals at every trip, but they seldom fail to bring reports of wonderful new gold strikes in the Klondike region. The transportation companies seem to find it hard to harmonize fact and theory.

Turkey in Asia, like the turkey in America, does not note any particular reason for joyousness as Thanksgiving day approaches.

The Democratic rooster avoided chill November's blast and kept closely to his coop on November 5.

The pulverization of Crokerism is about to begin. The process cannot be worked too thoroughly.

The Democrats are consoling themselves that the Republican landslide did not strike Mississippi.

Courtesy costs nothing, but it is a valuable asset in making up business success.

M. E. BISHOPS TO PREACH.

Will Fill Pulpits in Pittsburg—To Meet With Freedmen's
Board.

Pittsburg, Nov. 7.—Word was received that the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church will arrive in Pittsburg this week. The following bishops will arrive Friday and Saturday: Merrill, Walden, Andrews, Mal-laleu and Foss. Several distinguished members of the Freedmen's board also will come this week. The bishops and others are to speak in different pulpits.

On Monday morning the general convention of the bishops and the officials of the Freedmen's Aid society
will meet for business in the Christ
Methodist Episcopal church, of Allegheny, and will be welcomed to the city by the Rev. Dr. E. J. Knox. Bishop Charles D. Foss, of Philadelphia, will make the response. The Methodist Ministers' association will attend in a body and many of the Methodist Episcopal ministers from surrounding towns will be present, as this is the great convention of the year.

Monday will be consumed in hearing routine reports, especially the report of the treasurer. Several of the bishops will make 10-minute speeches
each, and at night there will be a mass meeting in Calvary church,
when the Rev. Dr. R. S. Rust will preside. Addresses will be made by the Rev. Dr. A. P. Campher, the president of West Africa college, and by Bishop J. W. Hamilton.

REV. DR. SWALLOW CONVICTED.

Ministers Suspend Him From Ministry Until Next Conference.

Harrisburg, Nov. 7.—Dr. Silas C.
Swallow was convicted of falsehood
by a committee of the Central Pennsylvania Methodist conference and suspended from the ministry until the next annual conference, which meets at Shamokin next March. The charges against Dr. Swallow were preferred by Rev. Charles V. Hartzell,
pastor of the Vine Street M. E.
church, and grew out of a controversy between Hartzell and Swallow over a publication in the Pennsylvania Methodist, of which Dr. Swallow is editor.

Dr. Swallow was the Prohibition nominee for state treasurer in 1897
and the Prohibition and Good Government candidate for governor in 1898.
He was the presidential nominee of the Christian Advocate party last November and was strongly supported for the presidential nomination at the national Prohibition convention
at Chicago in 1900.

FOILED BY VICTIM'S CRYING.

Failure of Attempt to Abduct Nephew
of a Cleveland Millionaire.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 7.—A sensational attempt to kidnap the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C.
Searles, of the Warwick apartment
house, was made.

Payne avenue car. Near Superior street the lad began to cry and the
would-be kidnaper became frightened
and fled.

The boy is a nephew of M. A. Bradley, and a great favorite of his uncle,
who is a Cleveland multi-millionaire.
The object of the attempted kidnapping undoubtedly was the demanding
of a heavy ransom.

New Castle, Pa., Nov. 7.—At the regular monthly meeting of the school board it developed that the tax and cash books of the school district are mysteriously missing. The books are absolutely necessary to the completion of the audit of the school district accounts, and their loss created a sensation. This adds another chapter to setting aright the finances of the city and school funds since they were discovered to be in such a tangled condition immediately after the murder
of City and School Treasurer John Blevins, who was short some $87,000.

Refused Requisition From Ohio.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Governor
Odell refused to authorize the extradition of R. C. Tompkins, of Buffalo, to Erie county, O. Tompkins is a commission merchant in Buffalo, and is charged with having obtained a large quantity of peaches in Ohio by making false representation as to his financial condition. His counsel maintained in opposition that the whole matter was a scheme to collect a debt.

AT THE THEATER

The Amy Lee company last night presented "Miss Harum Scaram" to a large audience. This was originally the bill for Monday night and is one of the strongest of the company's repertoire. Miss Lee took the title role and her work delighted everybody.
She was given excellent support and the performance was exceptionally good. "Provo," the juggler, as usual
made a great hit by his clever feats.
The specialties were in keeping with

The Jolly Pathfinders.

For over 22 years the above organization has been known to the theater-going public as the acme of all that was good in the amusement line. J.
N. Rentfrow, the manager, is one of the very few successful repertoire
managers upon the road today, at the opera house all next week.

The Mistake of the Polar Bear.

Nordenskjold found that the white bears generally went through a long performance of stalking his sailors,
clearly on the mistaken conclusion that they were seals. As the men were clothed partly in sealskin, it was a very natural mistake. But the interest of the story lies in the generalization
made by the bear. The bear said:

"There are two or three seals, one standing up on its flippers in a very unusual way. I will therefore stalk them unseen as long as I can and when they see me pretend to be doing something else."

So the men, with their guns and lances, who wanted to shoot the bear
had the pleasure of seeing him carefully crawling behind rocks and ice hummocks, making long detours this way
and that and every now and then clambering up a rock and peeping cautiously over to see if the seals had gone. On the open snow the bear would saunter off in another direction
and then, falling flat, push himself
paws covering his black muzzle, the only thing not matching the snow about him. Just as the bear thought he had got his "seal" the latter fired
and shot him, a victim of false analogy.

Norwegian Hotel Fire Escapes.

Nor do Norwegian hotels themselves
console you. Built of wood, their chief merit lies in the fire escape, which is to be found in the chief room upon every landing. At Visnes I spent a happy night answering the questions of nervous travelers who came from hour to hour to see if the fire escape in my room was working properly. Angry assurances were powerless to convince timid if ancient ladies. Did I really think the rope would work? Was there any danger? Had I tried the contrivance myself? Excellent souls! As if the printed notice were not enough!

Ah, that printed notice! I have a copy of it by me as I write. It is the complete instruction in English to the traveler threatened by fire in a wooden hotel in Norway. Let me give it to you as I found it:

"Fire escape—to throw out the window.
"The plaited snorter shall be found
in every room.
"To increase the hurry let down the body one by one until all shall be left.
"N. B.—The cord shall put out the ground from the shoulder thereunder."

Florists' Lives Are Short.

"It is commonly supposed that the men who work in the mines or those whose occupations necessitate the
breathing of poisonous fumes and gases are the shortest lived," said a prominent physician. "This is a mistake, and it will surprise many to learn that the highest death rate is found among
a class who breathe in the sweetest odors—florists.

"The reason is a simple one. The florist lives at once in the torrid and the frigid zone. From a greenhouse atmosphere of nearly 100 degrees in the winter months he must step out into one that is nearly always below freezing point and often below zero. In summer he has change to encounter, too, as in the spring and fall. By force of habit he grows careless and often works without his coat in the hot, artificial atmosphere, and this increases the dangers to which he is exposed. Lungs

A report comes from Wyoming that
a tract of 300,000 acres has been secured in that region on which it is proposed to locate a colony of Boers.
It is said that the prospective settlers
are now being brought over. They will build irrigation ditches and raise
sugar beets, besides carrying on other branches of rural industry. If the report is true, the sturdy Boers will
be welcomed. They will not long be able to maintain a marked exclusivness in this land of ours, and it will be better for them and their posterity
if they cannot. Becoming "utlanders" themselves, they may incidentally discover that America has become great simply through permitting that
class an equal chance with her own
happiness.

America is fast becoming an industrial school for all the world. Year
by year greater numbers of foreigners
flock here, not only from European countries, but from Asia, Africa and Australia, to learn American methods of work in mills, factories and machine shops. Great numbers of them remain here, but a considerable number return to their native lands,
perhaps to carry Yankee ideas to
spots to which modern progress is almost a stranger. The world is beginning to recognize that America leads
all the nations in mechanical skill
and inventive faculty, and is content
to sit at her feet and learn.

There are 3,234 election precincts
in the state of Ohio. By midnight of Tuesday the result of the election in
a majority of them was known from
one end of the state to the other,
such are the modern facilities for dis-

the telephone and telegraph. Yet one
occasionally hears an old fogey mourn

seem to regret that the world is not

Andrew Carnegie sees no use for an isthmian canal. If Andrew had not disposed of his big manufacturing

different light. One does not need to be very old to recall the days when
Mr. Carnegie was such a canal enthusiast that he was trying to turn a portion of Lake Erie into the Ohio
river at Pittsburgh.

In a town in Marion county citizens
have organized a club of sharpshoot-

safe-robbers a memorable reception.
It is an example other communities
might copy with advantage. Nobody will miss a few dead robbers, while scores will sadly lament the looting
of the safes in which their valuables
are deposited.

New York is about as wicked a city
as any in the land, unless it is much maligned. And yet New York has proven that it is not necessary to leave
the vicious and corrupt element in control of municipal affairs. The good people outnumber the bad in every
for them to assert themselves to get the upper hand of boodlers and cor-ruptionists.

M. E. BISHOPS TO PREACH.

Will Fill Pulpits in Pittsburgh—To Meet With Freedmen's
Board.

Pittsburg, Nov. 7.—Word was received that the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church will arrive in Pittsburg this week. The following bishops will arrive Friday and Saturday: Merrill, Walden, Andrews, Mal-
laleu and Foss. Several distinguished members of the Freedmen's board
also will come this week. The bishops and others are to speak in different pulpits.

On Monday morning the general convention of the bishops and the officials of the Freedmen's Aid society
will meet for business in the Christ
Methodist Episcopal church, of Allegheny, and will be welcomed to the city by the Rev. Dr. E. J. Knox.
Bishop Charles D. Foss, of Philadelphia, will make the response. The Methodist Ministers' association will attend in a body and many of the Methodist Episcopal ministers from surrounding towns will be present, as
year.

Monday will be consumed in hearing routine reports, especially the report of the treasurer. Several of the bishops will make 10-minute speeches
each, and at night there will be a
when the Rev. Dr. R. S. Rust will preside. Addresses will be made by the Rev. Dr. A. P. Campher, the pres-
Bishop J. W. Hamilton.

REV. DR. SWALLOW CONVICTED.

Ministers Suspend Him From Ministry Until Next Conference.

Harrisburg, Nov. 7.—Dr. Silas C.
Swallow was convicted of falsehood
by a committee of the Central Pennsylvania Methodist conference and
suspended from the ministry until the next annual conference, which meets
at Shamokin next March. The
ferred by Rev. Charles V. Hartzell,
pastor of the Vine Street M. E.
church, and grew out of a controversy between Hartzell and Swallow over a publication in the Pennsylvania Methodist, of which Dr. Swallow is editor.

Dr. Swallow was the Prohibition
nominee for state treasurer in 1897
and the Prohibition and Good Government candidate for governor in 1898.
He was the presidential nominee of
the Christian Advocate party last November and was strongly supported
for the presidential nomination at the national Prohibition convention
at Chicago in 1900.

FOILED BY VICTIM'S CRYING.

Failure of Attempt to Abduct Nephew
of a Cleveland Millionaire.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 7.—A sensational attempt to kidnap the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C.
Searles, of the Warwick apartment
house, was made.

Payne avenue car. Near Superior street the lad began to cry and the
would-be kidnaper became frightened
and fled.

The boy is a nephew of M. A. Bradley, and a great favorite of his uncle,
who is a Cleveland multi-millionaire.
The object of the attempted kidnap-ing undoubtedly was the demanding
of a heavy ransom.

New Castle, Pa., Nov. 7.—At the regular monthly meeting of the school board it developed that the tax and
cash books of the school district are mysteriously missing. The books are absolutely necessary to the completion of the audit of the school district accounts, and their loss created a sensation. This adds another chapter to settling aright the finances of the city and school funds since they were discovered to be in such a tangled condition immediately after the murder
of City and School Treasurer John Blevins, who was shot some $87,000.

Refused Requisition From Ohio.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Governor
Odell refused to authorize the extradition of R. C. Tompkins, of Buffalo,
to Erie county, O. Tompkins is a commission merchant in Buffalo, and
is charged with having obtained a large quantity of peaches in Ohio by making false representation as to his financial condition. His counsel maintained in opposition that the whole matter was a scheme to collect a debt.

AT THE THEATER

The Amy Lee company last night
presented "Miss Harum Scaram" to a large audience. This was originally
the bill for Monday night and is one of the strongest of the company's repertoire. Miss Lee took the title role and her work delighted everybody.
She was given excellent support and
the performance was exceptionally good. "Provo," the juggler, as usual
made a great hit by his clever feats.
The specialties were in keeping with
the performance and well received.

The Jolly Pathfinders.

For over 22 years the above organization has been known to the theater-going public as the acme of all that was good in the amusement line. J.
N. Rentfrow, the manager, is one of the very few successful repertoire
managers upon the road today, at the opera house all next week.

The Mistake of the Polar Bear.

Nordenskjold found that the white
bears generally went through a long performance of stalking his sailors,
clearly on the mistaken conclusion that they were seals. As the men were clothed partly in sealskin, it was a very natural mistake. But the interest of the story lies in the generalization
made by the bear. The bear said:

"There are two or three seals, one standing up on its flippers in a very unusual way. I will therefore stalk
them unseen as long as I can and when they see me pretend to be doing something else."

So the men, with their guns and
lances, who wanted to shoot the bear
had the pleasure of seeing him carefully crawling behind rocks and lee hummocks, making long detours this way
and that and every now and then clambering up a rock and peeping cautiously over to see if the seals had gone. On the open snow the bear
would saunter off in another direction
paws covering his black muzzle, the
only thing not matching the snow
about him. Just as the bear thought
he had got his "seal" the latter fired
and shot him, a victim of false analogy.

Norwegian Hotel Fire Escapes.

Nor do Norwegian hotels themselves
console you. Built of wood, their chief merit lies in the fire escape, which is to be found in the chief room upon every landing. At Visnes I spent a happy
night answering the questions of nervous travelers, who came from hour to hour to see if the fire escape in my room was working properly. Angry
assurances were powerless to convince timid if ancient ladies. Did I really think the rope would work? Was there any danger? Had I tried the contrivance myself? Excellent souls! As if the printed notice were not enough!

Ah, that printed notice! I have a copy of it by me as I write. It is the complete instruction in English to the traveler threatened by fire in a wooden hotel in Norway. Let me give it to you as I found it:

"Fire escape to throw out the window.

"The plaited snorter shall be found
in every room.

"To increase the hurry let down the
body one by one until all shall be left.

"N. B.—The cord shall put out the ground from the shoulder thereunder."
—London Mail.

Florists' Lives Are Short.

"It is commonly supposed that the men who work in the mines or those whose occupations necessitate the
breathing of poisonous fumes and gases
are the shortest lived," said a prominent physician. "This is a mistake,
and it will surprise many to learn that
the highest death rate is found among
a class who breathe in the sweetest
odors—florists.

"The reason is a simple one. The florist lives at once in the torrid and the frigid zone. From a greenhouse atmosphere of nearly 100 degrees in the winter months he must step out into one
that is nearly always below freezing
point and often below zero. In summer he has change to encounter, too, as in the spring and fall. By force of habit he grows careless and often works without his coat in the hot, artificial atmosphere, and this increases the dangers to which he is exposed. Lungs and throat and stomach diseases, as well as rheumatism, find in the florist
the least resistance."—Galveston News.

Will Endeavor to Make Street Railway Company Furnish the City Light

IF LAW IS CONSTITUTIONAL

Several Members Agree to Donate $5 Toward Buying a Street Sweeper. Another Called Meeting for Next Monday Night.

The city council held a called meeting in the city building last night. All the members were present but Bisset.

Judge P. M. Smith addressed the council in the interest of the Halliday heirs, who claim that their property on Third street was damaged to the extent of $700 by the recent improvement on that street. A committee was appointed to investigate. Judge Smith also spoke in behalf of the East Liverpool & Wellsville Railway company.

Mr. Healy, manager of the company, stated through his representative that he could not accept the ordinance passed at a previous meeting concerning the extending of their line out Eighteenth street. A petition signed by 40 residents of the Fifth ward asked that council grant the request of Mr. Healy. A committee was appointed to confer with Manager Healy.

Another petition signed by 12 residents, asking that a grade be established in the alley back of Liverpool street was read. The engineer was instructed to prepare an ordinance for grading said alley.

L. Heiner, of Eighteenth street, wanted a new grade established in front of his residence so he can have the sidewalk paved. The engineer was instructed to establish the same.

John Wooster asked that a grade be established on Steubenville street below Clark avenue so that he can erect a new house that will conform with the grade. Engineer was ordered to make a grade for the street.

O. P. Bowers protested against his property abutting on Maple alley being assessed for the proposed improvement. The protest was tabled.

Messrs. McClain, Starrett and Cummins constitute a committee that filed a petition for council to grant them the city hall for 12 nights at $4 per night. Petition granted providing committee pay janitor fee.

The electric light company presented a bill, but payment was suspended until investigation can be made in regard to alleged negligence of company in failing to provide proper light.

The stand taken by the Fort Pitt Gas company, of Pittsburgh, which has pipes laid over the city, was not liked by council and the solicitor was instructed to investigate the legality of the company's franchise and if a flaw of any kind be found to immediately demand of said company that they furnish, with no charge attached, light and heat for the city where it is deemed necessary, or their franchise will be declared invalid.

There is a law which if enforced can compel any railroad to light the streets of cities on which the road operates. The solicitor was ordered to formulate an ordinance compelling the East Liverpool & Wellsville Street Railway company to comply with that law in this city, which if proven constitutional will probably cause many other cities in the state to do likewise.

The lights now on the streets operated upon may be moved to different places where needed. The solicitor informed the council that a suit was pending in court at Lisbon in which the city of Wellsville is included. The suit was filed through Attorney Boyd and is a damage case brought by Charles Mick, who lost his right hand three months ago by coming in contact with a live wire on Lisbon street. He sues for $50,000. The railway company, telephone company and city are held liable in the suit.

The railway company will be instructed to have all wires insulated which are strung over the city and which come in contact with the feed wires.

Objection was made in regard to the cleanliness of the city streets. The street sweeper has been out of gear, but Mr. Rinehart volunteered to set it and sweep part of the city for no compensation. He was thanked by the council and given permission to do so.

The buying of a street sprinkler was commented upon and it was decided that one will be bought if the selling rate is reasonable.

Several members of the council volunteered to donate $5 each for buying one. It is thought that one can be purchased for $175.

Numerous bills were read and ordered paid.

At 10:30 o'clock council adjourned with the understanding that there would be a called meeting next Monday night, when the street paving and grading bids will be let and several ordinances passed.

SOME EXCITEMENT

Was Caused By a Runaway Team Belonging to Contractor Rinehart.

A runaway team of horses was the cause of much excitement late yesterday afternoon. The team belonged to Contractor Rinehart and was attached to a tool wagon. Both horses became frightened on Broadway below Third and ran at a breakneck speed down to Eighth, over to Main and up to Seventh, when they collided with a telephone pole, but they again broke away and finally stopped after one of them had fallen at the corner of Seventh and Broadway.

The horses escaped injury further than a few bruises. The wagon was not damaged.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

Rev. Manchester Conducted Services at the M. E. Church Last Night.

Rev. Mr. Manchester, presiding elder of the Steubenville district of the M. E. church, conducted prayer meeting and first quarterly conference at the M. E. church last night.

Rev. Mr. Manchester was President McKinley's pastor at Canton and delivered the funeral sermon at Canton.

Two Wagons Smashed.

A horse belonging to Bell & Lones, which had been left standing on Hill street while the driver delivered an order, ran away this morning. At Fifth street Bowers' milk wagon was collided with and both vehicles were almost wrecked. The driver of the milk wagon was pinned under the seat in the upset, but escaped injury.

Death of an Infant.

The seven-months-old infant of Mr. and Mrs. Kromger died Wednesday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. Mr. Wells. Interment was made at Spring Hill.

SOUTH SIDE MORE IMPROVEMENTS

TWO NEW SWITCHES BEING PUT IN AT THE MILL.

A New Dynamo Has Been Installed at Taylor, Smith & Taylor's Pottery.

Chester's industrial improvements continue in a progressive state. Two new railroad switches are being constructed at the tin mill and machinery is being installed.

At the Taylor, Smith & Taylor pottery two 35-horse power dynamos have been replaced with a 70-horse power dynamo. The pottery has been making heavy shipments, 12 cars of ware having been shipped from the Taylor, Smith & Taylor pottery in the past week.

The Gas Apparatus & Construction company has an increased force of men employed on its experimental plant, and will soon have the riveting on the tanks finished; however, it will likely be January 1 before the establishment is in readiness to be exhibited as a model.

DAVID GLAZIER

Former Well Known Hookstown Man Died at the Infirmary.

David Glazier, aged 80, and well known about Hookstown, died of his infirmities in the Beaver county (Pa.) poor house and his remains were buried Tuesday night in the Mill Creek cemetery.

Hookstown people are discussing the crudeness of the interment. The old man's body was put into a very rough box, no casket being procured, and hauled to Mill Creek, the burial occurring at night.

At the grave the lid was removed for people to look on the face of the dead, when corpse, box and dirt, by some awkward mishap, rolled in the grave. The spectators were shocked by the incident.

Still at Large.

William McBee, the young man for whom a warrant was issued Monday for striking his mother with a chair and otherwise cruelly beating her, continues in hiding and has not yet been apprehended by Chief of Police Hiram Allison.

CHESTER NOTES.

The Chester city council meets this evening.

John Allison and wife, aged Hookstown people, are critically ill.

Howard Rogers has broken ground for a five-room dwelling on Phoenix avenue.

Daniel McDonald has moved from New Cumberland into apartments in the Thompson building, on First street.

A large number of Chester citizens are attending the Allison-Mercer sale that is in progress three miles from Chester.

Miss Lavina Boyd, aged 35, died this week at the home of relatives up the river. The burial occurred yesterday at Mill Creek.

Isaac Huff, who resides two miles southwest of Chester, but works in an East Liverpool pottery, will move next week to East Liverpool.

VIRGINIA.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 7.—Official and unofficial returns of the election do not change the figures already given, except to increase the Democratic majority on the state ticket. It will probably run to 30,000. The Republicans gain two senators and eight members of the house, leaving both branches of the legislature overwhelmingly Democratic.

PRESENT JURY SYSTEM A Relic of A Semibarbaric Age

By JUSTICE DAVID J. BREWER, United States Supreme Court

It is one of the duties of American citizenship that we are called to serve as jurymen. How many cases of sickness the jury call reveals! Men do not like to serve as jurors, and I don't blame them.

THE JURY SYSTEM AS IT IS AT PRESENT ADMINISTERED IS LITTLE MORE THAN A RELIC OF A SEMIBARBIC AGE.

The juror is treated little better than a criminal. He is locked up at night and is given little more pay than a day laborer. He is compelled to listen to the wrangle of lawyers. I HOPE THAT THE TIME WILL COME WHEN THE JUROR WILL BE TREATED LIKE A GENTLEMAN AND WHEN HE WILL RECEIVE THE PAY OF A BUSINESS MAN.

It is one of the duties of American citizenship to perform the duties of a witness when summoned into court, although under the present system the witness is treated like a liar and is browbeaten by opposing lawyers. But the juror and the witness should strive for their own elevation and should perform their duties of citizenship in these respects when called on to do so.

It has been said that prohibitory laws are the most certain incentives of perjury known. Both witnesses and jurors are parleying with conscience, and their attitudes spring from objection to the law. I do not mean to say that some of them may be unwise. I don't mean to say that sometimes the people may be made good by statutes or ordinances. But I do wish to say that when a city passes an ordinance it is the duty of its residents to uphold it.

TEN PERISHED IN A FIRE.

A Theater and Three Other Buildings Destroyed, at Hurley, Wis.

Ironwood, Mich., Nov. 7.—Ten lives were lost and four buildings destroyed by a fire which started in E. Le Claire's Klondike theater at Hurley, Wis.

The dead are: C. W. Cleveland, H. P. Clifford, Thomas Le Claire, George Benert, H. D. Emory, Timothy Ryan, F. L. Gay, St. Louis; Thomas Ozzane, Harry Raymond, Clare Bonne.

The seriously injured are: Jennie Bender, Annie Scott, Laura Russell, "Billy" McLaughlin.

The Klondike was a vaudeville theater and all of the dead and injured were connected with the theater as performers. Most of them lived at Hurley, and Thomas Le Claire was a brother of the proprietor of the theater.

The fire started on the stage and in a few minutes the entire structure was a mass of flames. The third story was used as sleeping quarters and the rapid spread of the flames cut off the escape of the occupants.

The theater building was quickly consumed and the flames spread to adjoining structures. The Ironwood fire department was called to the assistance of the Hurley firemen and only by hardest work was the town saved from being wiped out.

The losses follow: E. Le Claire, Klondike theater, $7,000; M. Cummings, Monarch saloon, $4,000; Harrigan and McPherson's saloon, $6,000; D. P. McNeil, $1,000; Constantine Ersparner, $500.

The charred remains of six of the victims have been recovered and search is being made for the others.

The Klondike theater burned once before, in July, 1887, when 11 women lost their lives.

BERLIN PAPERS COMMENT.

Opinions Expressed on Defeat of Tammany.

Berlin, Nov. 7.—Many of the Berlin evening papers commented upon the outcome of the elections in New York city, all rejoicing in the success of Seth Low.

"Political morality," says The Vossische Zeitung, "has gained a brilliant and, we hope, a decisive victory over the reckless and thoroughly corrupt spoils system of the present municipal administration. No doubt the victory is so decisive that the influence of Croker has been permanently broken."

The National Zeitung says: "Tammany Hall well deserved the defeat, which is of great importance for New York."

The Berliner Tageblatt and the Berliner Neueste Nachrichten express a hope that the "terrorism of Tammany" is ended.

The Lokal Anzeiger observes that "the high school of corruption has closed for two years."

The Boersen Zeitung, however, says: "We do not expect much from Mr. Low's victory and Tammany Hall is by no means broken."

COST OF LIVING HIGH.

Greatest in This Decade, According to Dun's Review.

New York, Nov. 7.—Dun's Review, to be issued Nov. 9, will say:

"Dun's index number, covering 350 questions, with due allowance for the relative importance of each, was $97.743 on Nov. 1, an increase of nine-tenths of 1 per cent for the month of October, and 7 per cent as compared with the same date last year. The cost of living has now reached the highest point of the decade, notwithstanding the cheapening of many manufactured goods through improved processes and the absence of undue inflation in various classes of steel products, which was conspicuous in the spring of 1900, and brought about the subsequent severe reaction. No artificial stimulus is responsible for the present high level of manufactured products, and aside from some rise in food products, due to short crops, the present position of the index number may be attributed to sound business conditions and full employment of labor at high wages."

"Prior to Nov. 1 the top point during the past 10 years was March 15, 1900, when the cost of living per capita per annum was $97.40."

Several Members Agree to Donate $5 Toward Buying a Street Sweeper. Another Called Meeting for Next Monday Night.

The city council held a called meeting in the city building last night. All the members were present but Bisset.

Judge P. M. Smith addressed the council in the interest of the Halliday heirs, who claim that their property on Third street was damaged to the extent of $700 by the recent improvement on that street. A committee was appointed to investigate. Judge Smith also spoke in behalf of the East Liverpool & Wellsville Railway company.

Mr. Healy, manager of the company, stated through his representative that he could not accept the ordinance passed at a previous meeting concerning the extending of their line out Eighteenth street. A petition signed by 40 residents of the Fifth ward asked that council grant the request of Mr. Healy. A committee was appointed to confer with Manager Healy.

Another petition signed by 12 residents, asking that a grade be established in the alley back of Liverpool street was read. The engineer was instructed to prepare an ordinance for grading said alley.

L. Heiner, of Eighteenth street, wanted a new grade established in front of his residence so he can have the sidewalk paved. The engineer was instructed to establish the same.

John Wooster asked that a grade be established on Steubenville street below Clark avenue so that he can erect a new house that will conform with the grade. Engineer was ordered to make a grade for the street.

O. P. Bowers protested against his property abutting on Maple alley being assessed for the proposed improvement. The protest was tabled.

Messrs. McClain, Starrett and Cummins constitute a committee that filed a petition for council to grant them the city hall for 12 nights at $4 per night. Petition granted providing committee pay janitor fee.

The electric light company presented a bill, but payment was suspended until investigation can be made in regard to alleged negligence of company in failing to provide proper light.

The stand taken by the Fort Pitt Gas company, of Pittsburgh, which has pipes laid over the city, was not liked by council and the solicitor was instructed to investigate the legality of the company's franchise and if a flaw of any kind be found to immediately demand of said company that they furnish, with no charge attached, light and heat for the city where it is deemed necessary, or their franchise will be declared invalid.

There is a law which if enforced can compel any railroad to light the streets of cities on which the road operates. The solicitor was ordered to formulate an ordinance compelling the East Liverpool & Wellsville Street Railway company to comply with that law in this city, which if proven constitutional will probably cause many other cities in the state to do likewise.

The lights now on the streets operated upon may be moved to different places where needed. The solicitor informed the council that a suit was pending in court at Lisbon in which the city of Wellsville is included. The suit was filed through Attorney Boyd and is a damage case brought by Charles Mick, who lost his right hand three months ago by coming in contact with a live wire on Lisbon street. He sues for $50,000. The railway company, telephone company and city are held liable in the suit.

The railway company will be instructed to have all wires insulated which are strung over the city and which come in contact with the feed wires.

Objection was made in regard to the cleanliness of the city streets. The street sweeper has been out of gear, but Mr. Rinehart volunteered to set it and sweep part of the city for no compensation. He was thanked by the council and given permission to do so.

The buying of a street sprinkler was commented upon and it was decided that one will be bought if the selling rate is reasonable.

Several members of the council volunteered to donate $5 each for buying one. It is thought that one can be purchased for $175.

Numerous bills were read and ordered paid.

At 10:30 o'clock council adjourned with the understanding that there would be a called meeting next Monday night, when the street paving and grading bids will be let and several ordinances passed.

SOME EXCITEMENT

Was Caused By a Runaway Team Belonging to Contractor Rinehart.

A runaway team of horses was the cause of much excitement late yesterday afternoon. The team belonged to Contractor Rinehart and was attached to a tool wagon. Both horses became frightened on Broadway below Third and ran at a breakneck speed down to Eighth, over to Main and up to Seventh, when they collided with a telephone pole, but they again broke away and finally stopped after one of them had fallen at the corner of Seventh and Broadway.

The horses escaped injury further than a few bruises. The wagon was not damaged.

She threw a quick, intensely searching look into the pallid face smiling through pain and in an instant was on her knees kissing the thin hand that closed upon hers.

"My love, my hope, my life! Oh, how wonderful and good is God!" she sobbed.

"The Lord lifteth up them that are cast down; the Lord loveth the just," exclaimed the priest, down whose cheeks great tears of joy were coursing, and led his charge to the veranda.

The return of Horace Oakfell seemed a veritable resurrection of the dead. But there was no miracle. It was all explained by the story of Leon, who told it at Oakfell's request and told it with modesty and self-negation rare in heroes even of less merit:

was fired from the stone fence. I was behind and saw him fall. I was not hit, but fell, too, for I was in the service only for him and determined to leave him above ground and if they buried him to know where to find his grave. I felt his chest moving and found he was breathing. The southern soldiers were early driven from the neighborhood of the spring. I bathed Mr. Horace's face and neck with water and wound my shirt about his shoulder, which had been torn away by a mine ball and a piece of the shell. He has no right shoulder now. The battle was over before sunset, and when the Union soldiers came to bury the dead and carry off the wounded he had opened his eyes, but could not speak or move. A sergeant said he would die before morning, and it was of no use to take him from the field, but I begged and implored them not to leave him, and a captain ordered him to be moved to the rear. With others he was hauled in an open wagon to Bardston and put in a big Catholic college, which was turned into a hospital. They said I had nothing to do with secession and was not a prisoner, but I walked behind the wagon and saw him laid on the floor, with hundreds of the wounded of both sides. They let me wait on the poor men, and I attended to Mr. Horace through the six months they kept him there. Then they sent him to a hospital at New Albany, in Indiana. I managed to follow and got employment in the hospital kitchen. They never did take the little pieces of broken bone from his shoulder, and his wound did not heal. But he got so that he could sit up, and they sent him to the Rock Island prison. It took me a long time, but I worked my way there, and though I could not get inside the wall, I heard he was still alive. I got a place as waiter in a little hotel and kept pretty well posted about the dispositions made of the prisoners.

"Next they changed him to the Camp Douglas prison at Chicago. He was not able to walk, as the others did, and they carried him in an ambulance to the boat. I went, too, and at Chicago got work in a livery stable. They were strict on the prisoners at Camp Douglas. I could not get inside, but I kept asking questions of people near the prison and learned something of what was going on. About a year ago I was led to believe he had been sent to Fortress Monroe in Virginia for exchange. I just swore not to lose him, and after weeks of walking and some stolen rides on railroads I succeeded in reaching that place, to be told that a wounded lieutenant answering his description had been exchanged and forwarded to Richmond. It was not much trouble for me to get through the lines, but at Richmond I could find no trace of him. I did not know what to do and like a crazy man wandered from camp to camp and place to place searching for him. At times I was almost starved. It was only last March I saw a boatload of exchanged men come up the James, most of them too weak to hold a gun. Mr. Horace was the second one to stagger down the gangplank, and if I had not caught him he would have fallen. He had been in Camp Douglas all that time. He went twice to the front and was then ordered back to the hospital. Then came the surrender, and we started for home without rations or money. We crossed the country by slow stages, getting food and shelter from kind country people in West Virginia and Kentucky, but at times Mr. Horace gave out and said he could go no farther. Then I would tell him that I had vowed to bring him home alive or dead, for Miss Estelle was waiting for him. He would smile and say, "Then, God give me strength, come on," and we would march again. At Louisville he borrowed a small sum of money, and we took passage on the steamboat City of Memphis for Red River Landing. We arrived there this morning in time for the mail hack, and here we are."

"God bless you, Leon, and repay you for your noble devotion," exclaimed Estelle, weeping in sympathy and thankfulness.

"God will bless him," Father Grier said authoritatively.

"A truer heart than Leon's beats not in the breast of any man, whatever be his color or station, and his comfort and advancement are especial charges on my life and fortune," Oakfell added.

"Mr. Horace," Leon protested, "you owe me nothing. Remember, you stood by the poor negro jockey when all the world and all the law were against him. Only by his friend and adviser, and I will be content."

It was touching to see Odette's honest, comely face flush with pride as Leon's narration proceeded and her bosom swell when his praise was spoken by the grateful hearers.

"Estelle," said Horace, stroking her head lovingly, "in the long, dreary nights of imprisonment I have dreamed of this and awakened to wish I had died while dreaming."

The click of a latch drew the eyes of the group on the veranda to the gate. Evariste, who, to avoid the sun and the meeting of acquaintances, had ridden through the swamp instead of along the bayou road, entered, slamming the gate behind him, and started briskly up the walk with a swaggering air. Estelle blanched. The priest frowned. Horace smiled and sat up in his chair. Evariste had almost reached the veranda before he recognized his brother's countenance. He stopped suddenly, an expression of consternation came over his features, and uttering an inarticulate cry of terror, he turned and ran to the gate, leaped upon his horse and sped like one pursued by demons. His flight was not slackened until Quillebert's house was reached, where Laure stood in the doorway as if expecting him. He drew rein, flung himself from the saddle and, his eyes starting from his head, whispered hoarsely:

"Where is Quillebert?"

"Gone to Marksville to sell this place to Dr. De Roux," Laure replied, with a calmness wholly untroubled by the excitement under which he labored.

"How soon will he return?"

"Not before 9 o'clock tonight. Come in and tell me what has happened."

He followed her into the house and exclaimed:

"Laure, I have seen a ghost!"

"You have not. You are not of the kind that see ghosts."

"I tell you I have seen my brother's ghost."

"You have not. It was your brother himself."

"Then he lives? He has come back?"

Evariste cried in agony.

"Yes, I sensed he would."

"And I," groaned Evariste, "told, detected, exposed and beggared!"

"Have come to me at last, as I knew you would," Laure finished his sentence with the assurance of one who viewed a result of her own designing.

The listlessness of early Sunday morning was unbroken until the dust of the road began to be stirred by the faithful going to the 10 o'clock mass at the Mansura church. They were in greater numbers than on ordinary Sundays, for the desire to hear Father Grier tell of the marvelous reappearance of Oakfell was universal. Of course, Quillebert's absence was not noticed, nor was any importance attached by those who observed it to the fact that the door of his house, opening inward, was partly ajar, though no movement or sign of life was about the place. It was only at noon, when the cavalcade of worshippers was returning from the service, that Dr. De Roux stopped to speak with him concerning the sale of the previous day. Having knocked and waited in vain for response, he pushed the door against a heavy but yielding obstruction and stepped inside. An instant later he sprang back upon the veranda with an exclamation of horror and, gesticulating wildly, summoned the passersby. A spectacle which froze the marrow met their eyes. Behind the door stretched the corpse of Constant Quillebert, the head, crushed and battered, lying in a pool of thick, drying blood. A hatchet into the helve of which were cut the initials "C. Q." was under the left arm. To its reddened blade short, coarse hairs were glued. The iron safe in his bedchamber stood open. His books and loose sheets of accounts were on a table and scattered about the floor. The lid of his strong box was thrown back. The paper money paid to him by Dr. De Roux the day before was gone. His gold money was gone. His French money was gone. Laure was gone! Evariste was gone!

THE END.

NANCY HANNIGAN'S SUITORS.

By Seumas MacManus.

Copyright, 1901, by Seumas MacManus.

NANCY HANNIGAN was the one daughter of Seumas and Nelly Hannigan. Nancy as she grew up developed such an attractive appearance that she was dubbed "the flower of Dhrimmore." Ere yet Nancy was mature she had to go the way of the young women (and young men, too) of our Donegal seaboard—she had to go over the mountains to hire with the Scotch planters who owned the big rich farms by the valley of the Finn. Nancy being of such tender years, so inexperienced of the world, and still worse, possessing the fatality of exceptional beauty, Seumas and Nelly were loath to let her go. But, despite a little fishing and a little tilling, want gave an occasional knock at Seumas' door, as at the doors of his neighbors, so perforce poor Nancy must face the world.

With a very large store of advice and warning, the only commodities her mother could afford to be liberal with; a very small store of clothes, done up in a red handkerchief, and her father's and mother's blessing, Nancy took the road with the other poor boys and girls just before the sun began to rub the mists off his eyes and peep up over the shoulder of Barnesmore mountain on a Friday morning and trudged 36 miles before bedtime and stood in the Rabble market in Strabane next day waiting for some one to come and hire her.

Several big rough farmers and some rougher farmers' wives had come up and viewed Nancy at every angle of observation, quizzed, questioned and cross questioned her, putting her through the catechism of her abilities, and then priced her and haggled with her, trying to beat her down 5 shillings in the half year's wage, and quitted her, giving their opinion that she was too delicate for a girl's work in the Laign, which included wrestling with tubs and pots of boiled roots, feeding cows and pigs, milking, churning and butter making. Finally an imposing old lady of generous girth and evidently of higher social status than the farmer's wife came up and, raising her glasses, viewed Nancy calmly and critically and then trotted her through the usual catechism. Mrs. Neilson, it turned out, did not require a pot wrestler, but a dairymaid, and, Nancy and Nancy's price suiting her, they quickly agreed as mistress and maid, and Mrs. Neilson's son, a bashful young man, than whom Nancy vowed she never before had seen any one so exquisitely dressed, drove them home in a buggy.

Mrs. Neilson took much pains showing Nancy her work next morning, and when this had been done to the satisfaction of both she led Nancy to the parlor and, sinking into an easy chair, began to read her a homily upon the conduct she expected of all females under her roof. The bashful and nice young man, as primly dressed as ever, read a book by the window. Though he glanced at Nancy as he came in, he was either too modest or too much absorbed in the book to raise his eyes a second time. Two virtues ever possessed by Nancy were docility and respectfulness, but under Mrs. Neilson's lecturing tongue she had much ado to keep down a rebellious spirit that for the first time moved within her.

"For, you know," the good Mrs. Neilson tried to impress upon her, "you girls who come here from those wild mountains have to be taught the proprieties necessary to young women, which, I fear, are sadly left out in your bringing up." Nancy flushed. "Your parents, it seems to me, dear, allow you to grow wild, with the result that you come over the mountains into our country so hoidenish that it takes much of our time and trouble to civilize you and to teach you Christianlike conduct." Here Nancy gave her head a most indignant little toss, which was quite lost upon her mentor, who was either so absorbed with her own discourse that she didn't see it or else, seeing it, took it as a matter of course.

"And now one thing in particular I want to impress on you is to warn you against giving our Tommy any encouragement." Nancy looked at Mrs. Neilson in amazement. "Tommy is my eldest boy and sadly differs from Alexander here," indicating the young man who read and who blushed in response to the implied compliment—"is sadly different, I'm sorry to say, from Alexander. Tommy is a harum scarum, of whom we never could make anything, for he couldn't be got to mind his books. Tommy will go to the other side of the parish after a pretty face, and the only objection I can yet find with you is that I'm positive you won't

"Now, mind you give that boy no encouragement. My heart's nigh broken with him," and she gave a faint sigh, "and indeed but that I have the comfort and consolation of possessing my own wise, good Alexander I think it would be quite broken long ago. Now you have got your warning, dear!" Nancy dropped a haughty courtesy—"and mind you keep that boy at arm's length, for emphatically I'll not tolerate any servant girls courting with my son."

Nancy tossed her head again and flashed a look at Mrs. Neilson. She felt that she would like to deliver herself of a piece of her mind, but poor Nancy likewise felt that if she spoke she would say something hot and hasty, for which she would certainly be sorry

"Heigho!" was echoed back as from a breast weighted with trouble.

Nancy, startled, looked up and beheld a rakish, dashing fellow seated on one of the milk crocks which stood on the table. He was laughing heartily at the start he had given her.

"Hello, Nancy!" he said when he could.

Nancy had been more than half inclined to laugh at first, his countenance was so humorous and his manner so catching, but she remembered Mrs. Neilson's warning, so she replied tartly:

"Indeed an my name comes glib to ye, doesn't it, or not?"

"By George, it does! Seems to me like as if I'd known you, Nancy, for the last 50 years."

"Well, the quicker ye get rid o' that notion the better. Who are ye, or what are ye, or what's yer business here?"

"That's right, now. I like that, Nancy. That's coming plank down to business at once. Well, I'm Tommy. I'm a harum scarum good for nothing—at least so the old woman says, and she should know—and my business here is to court you."

Nancy flung the churn scrubber at him by way of reply to his audacity, and Tommy caught it deftly. He dismounted from his position and, approaching Nancy, returned the brush with a mock bow, then turned to her the back of his bent head, saying:

Nancy without any delay drew him across the head a smart whack of the brush, causing him to jump up with a yell and execute a good imitation of an Indian war dance around herself and the churn, rubbing and scratching the back of his head the while.

"That's for yer impudence," Nancy said when he quivered.

"Oh, you duck! Shouldn't I like to be thrashed every day for just such a vision as your sweet self?"

"In troth," said Nancy, "if ye provoke me to go practicin my wrist on ye again ye'll maybe find it's little o' the vision's about it—or at least it's the sort o' vision that leaves blisters behind it."

"Nancy, mavourneen, it's I who know that, for already there's a blister on my heart the size of your shoe—the size of my own shoe, I mean."

"Be off, I say, or I'll raise them the size o' yer head—an that's big enough—on the ribs of ye. Be off, I tell ye!"

"And I can't go, I tell you!" accompanied by such a travesty on an ogle that Nancy was compelled to laugh.

"It wasn't enough for yer mother to warn me against ye, I suppose, an tell me the sort o' villain ye were an the thricks ye do be up to."

"Nancy, agraah, I wish the next time you find my mother preaching against courting you'd just only ask her quietly if she never did it herself and did she get the man sent down from heaven in a hand basket of a morning."

"Go ask her yerself, ye rascal! Aren't ye every bit as big an as ugly as me to do the business?"

"Ah-h-h, Nancy, avilish!"

"Begone, for the common nuisance ye are!" And by means of a very vigorous assault on him with the scrubbing brush Nancy whacked him out of the door and slammed it in his face.

As she got at her work again he was sending a parting salute through the keyhole:

"Yes, Nancy, darling, I'm gone—gone to patch together as best I can the smithereens of a smashed heart. With that cruel brush of yours you've made very small pieces of it. If I can get it into any sort of presentable order, I'll be back for another court tomorrow. I'll then adieu!"

"Then the devil go with ye!" Nancy shouted.

"A purty boy indeed ye are," she went on smilingly, soliloquizing as she wrought—"a purty boy, troth! An small wonder yer own mother had to warn me against ye. If ye come to keep me from work the morra, I'll be aferrid it isn't the scrubbin brush I'll be usin on ye. No; I'll be after takin to ye somethin a thrifle weightier—somethin that'll make ye farn yer place an keep it."

It was Alexander, the bashful, who surprised Nancy this time, only Nancy noted that, though solemn enough, he did not look quite so bashful as he had done in his mother's presence.

"Ha, ha, ha!" Nancy laughed. "Not a bit of interference, only just crackin a joke to keep me from feelin homesick. Intherferin! Haght! Not him! He wouldn't interfere with a mouse, I do believe. It's the gay heart an the light wan he has, God bless him!"

"And so," Alexander said, moving closer up to Nancy and looking into her blue eyes sympathetically—"and so you are feeling 'long' and lonesome after home?"

"A little, not much—not much!" she said in a tone which, interpreted, meant "A great deal."

"Well, now, Nancy, my dear," and he laid a hand gently on her shoulder—"Nancy, my dear, we must do our best to be kind to you and keep the feeling of 'long' away from you."

Nancy was touched by the feeling expression of such real sympathy. She cast down her eyes as she said:

"I'm sure I must be forever obliged to ye, sir, for yer good heartedness to the stranger."

"My dear Nancy"—here he sat him on the edge of the churn and looked across into Nancy's pretty face—"don't say stranger. You're not to feel strange

here. You're not to make strange with any one, except, of course, the villain Tommy. By all means you must make strange with that fellow. You must observe mother's good advice regarding him. But you are not to feel strange with me, for instance. And he laid a hand affectionately on Nancy's head.

"I'm forever obliged," Nancy said in the thankfulness of her heart.

"For you know, Nancy," he continued, jocosely wagging a forefinger at her, "I shouldn't like a young girl with such a beautiful head of hair"—here he stroked it—"and such eyes"—and he gazed into their depths—"to feel strange with me."

A puzzled look overspread Nancy's countenance.

"And," Alexander went on, "I should certainly not like such lips to tell it to me." He wound this up by a playful attempt to chuck Nancy under the chin. Nancy, slipping back, drew herself up in an attitude of indignation.

"What!" he said, surprised. "And the pose of a Greek goddess, by all that's beautiful!" He stepped toward her in admiration and attempted to lay his arm around her waist.

Instantly Nancy's little hand shot up more rapidly than he could have been prepared for, and with the back of it she drew him a sounding smack along the mouth, which stopped him in mingled amazement and pain.

When he got his breath again, "Well, upon my solemn word, you fiery Nancy,

Makes things clean in a Harmless Way

Walker's Soap makes the washday work five hours shorter, and leaves the fabric strong, the hands firm.

WALKER'S SOAP

contains no alkali, and does nothing but cleanse.

your sweet lips must soothe what your wicked hand has made smart." And he made a dash at her.

But Nancy, clutching at a butter spade, struck out and hit him a sounding rap squarely on the nose, making blood spurt and bringing the gallant Alexander to a dead stop.

He clapped both hands to his nose. Nancy, who could not help smiling through her indignation, still stood at bay watching the brave fellow nurse his nose, and at that instant Mrs. Neilson's voice was heard, just without the door, crying back to the kitchenmaid directions about dinner. Alexander threw up his hands in alarm.

"Nancy, upon my soul, I'm undone!" Rapidly his eye ran around the dairy, but few hiding places were there. His glance fell upon the big churn. He whisked off the lid and jumped in. Ere his head disappeared he paused, while he whispered:

"Nancy, Nancy, I'm your friend from this day—if you say nothing." Then the head disappeared and the lid was pulled down to its position within the churn.

Poor Nancy was awayed between indignation, amazement and laughter at the ludicrous denouement, and it is more than probable that laughter, and right hearty laughter, would have claimed her had not Mrs. Neilson then come sailing in.

"Well, little girl, are you standing idle? Why aren't you at work? Don't commence to mope, thinking of home now." And Mrs. Neilson fussed around the dairy. "You know that's not what I'm paying you extravagant wages for. Nor were you ever quartered so well at home, away in those wild mountains, as you are here, with plenty to eat and not too much to do, only you must always keep your hands going. What are you working at now? What? And you haven't finished with the churn yet? Oh, dear! What are servant girls useful for now, except to get in one's way? Have you given it the second scalding yet? No? What's this to do? What's this to do? Is the kettle boiled? Here, stand out of my way! Old woman as I am, I'm as good as half a dozen of the sort of girls going nowadays. Out of my way! Out of my way! And pray observe how I scald a churn, for I'll venture my word you have to be taught it. Pough! Deary me, it's roasting!" And Mrs. Neilson, letting go the kettle she had essayed to lift, now protected her hand with her apron and bore off to the churn the steaming and hissing kettle.

She rested it on the rim of the churn. "Now, observe, my girl—What do you think it is only for your amusement I do this, that you stand grinning?" Nancy drew as long a face as she could assume. "Observe. You first pass the water round the edges of the lid this way, and"—

"Oh! Oh! Oh! Oh!" An unearthly yell ascended from out the bowels of the churn, the lid shot up in the face of the screaming Mrs. Neilson, a dripping human head dashed after, forth jumped a man, and at a bound, leaping clear over the prostrate form of his mother, the wise, the studious, the good and bashful and well scalded Alexander burst screaming through the door.

"My love, my hope, my life! Oh, how wonderful and good is God!" she sobbed.

"The Lord lifteth up them that are cast down; the Lord loveth the just," exclaimed the priest, down whose cheeks great tears of joy were coursing, and led his charge to the veranda.

The return of Horace Oakfell seemed a veritable resurrection of the dead. But there was no miracle. It was all explained by the story of Leon, who told it at Oakfell's request and told it with modesty and self negation rare in heroes even of less merit.

was fired from the stone fence. I was behind and saw him fall. I was not hit, but fell, too, for I was in the service only for him and determined to leave him above ground and if they buried him to know where to find his grave. I felt his chest moving and found he was breathing. The southern soldiers were early driven from the neighborhood of the spring. I bathed Mr. Horace's face and neck with water and wound my spirit about his shoulder, which had been torn away by a mule ball and a piece of the shell. He has no right shoulder now. The battle was over before sunset, and when the Union soldiers came to bury the dead and carry off the wounded he had opened his eyes, but could not speak or move. A sergeant said he would die before morning, and it was of no use to take him from the field, but I begged and implored them not to leave him, and a captain ordered him to be moved to the rear. With others he was hauled in an open wagon to Bardstown and put in a big Catholic college, which was turned into a hospital. They said I had nothing to do with secession and was not a prisoner, but I walked behind the wagon and saw him laid on the floor, with hundreds of the wounded of both sides. They let me wait on the poor men, and I attended to Mr. Horace through the six months they kept him there. Then they sent him to a hospital at New Albany, in Indiana. I managed to follow and got employment in the hospital kitchen. They never did take the little pieces of broken bone from his shoulder, and his wound did not heal. But he got so that he could sit up, and they sent him to the Rock Island prison. It took me a long time, but I forked my way there, and, though I could not get inside the wall, I heard he was still alive. I got a place as waiter in a little hotel and kept pretty well posted about the dispositions made of the prisoners.

"Next they changed him to the Camp Douglas prison at Chicago. He was not able to walk, as the others did, and they carried him in an ambulance to the boat. I went, too, and at Chicago got work in a livery stable. They were strict on the prisoners at Camp Douglas. I could not get inside, but I kept asking questions of people near the prison and learned something of what was going on. About a year ago I was led to believe he had been sent to Fortress Monroe in Virginia for exchange. I just swore not to lose him, and after weeks of waiting and some stolen rides on railroads I succeeded in reaching that place, to be told that a wounded lieutenant answering his description had been exchanged and forwarded to Richmond. It was not much trouble for me to get through the lines, but at Richmond I could find no trace of him. I did not know what to do and like a crazy man wandered from camp to camp and place to place searching for him. At times I was almost starved. It was only last March I saw a boatload of exchanged men come up the James, most of them too weak to hold a gun. Mr. Horace was the second one to stagger down the gangplank, and if I had not caught him he would have fallen. He had been in Camp Douglas all that time. He went twice to the front and was twice ordered back to the hospital. Then came the surrender, and we started for home without rations or money. We crossed the country by slow stages, getting food and shelter from kind country people in West Virginia and Kentucky, but at times Mr. Horace gave out and said he could go no farther. Then I would tell him that I had vowed to bring him home alive or dead, for Miss Estelle was waiting for him. He would smile and say, "Then, God give me strength; come on, and we would march again. At Louisville he borrowed a small sum of money, and we took passage on the steamboat City of Memphis for Red River Landing. We arrived there this morning in time for the mail hack, and here we are."

"God bless you, Leon, and repay you for your noble devotion," exclaimed Estelle, weeping in sympathy and thankfulness.

"God will bless him," Father Grhe said authoritatively.

"A truer heart than Leon's beats not in the breast of any man, whatever be his color or station, and his comfort and advancement are especial charges on my life and fortune," Oakfell added.

"Mr. Horace," Leon protested, "you owe me nothing. Remember, you stood by the poor negro jockey when all the world and all the law were against him. Only be my friend and adviser, and I will be content."

It was touching to see Odette's honest, comely face flush with pride as Leon's narration proceeded and her bosom swell when his praise was spoken by the grateful hearers.

"Estelle," said Horace, stroking her head lovingly, "in the long, dreary nights of imprisonment I have dreamed of this and awakened to wish I had died while dreaming."

The click of a latch drew the eyes of the group on the veranda to the gate. Evariste, who, to avoid the sun and the meeting of acquaintances, had ridden through the swamp instead of along the bayou road, entered, slamming the gate behind him, and started briskly up the walk with a swaggering air. Estelle blanched. The priest frowned. Horace smiled and sat up in his chair. Evariste had almost reached the veranda before he recognized his brother's countenance. He stopped suddenly, an expression of consternation came over his features, and, uttering an inarticulate cry of terror, he turned and ran to the gate, leaped upon his horse and sped like one pursued by demons. His flight was not slackened until Quillebert's house was reached, where Laure stood in the doorway as if expecting him. He drew rein, flung himself from the saddle and, his eyes starting from his head, whispered hoarsely:

"Where is Quillebert?"

"Gone to Marksville to sell this place to Dr. De Roux," Laure replied, with a calmness wholly untroubled by the excitement under which he labored.

"How soon will he return?"

"Not before 9 o'clock tonight. Come in and tell me what has happened."

He followed her into the house and exclaimed:

"Laure, I have seen a ghost!"

"You have not. You are not of the kind that see ghosts."

"I tell you I have seen my brother's ghost."

"You have not. It was your brother himself."

"Then he lives? He has come back?"

Evariste cried in agony.

"Yes, I sensed he would."

"And I," groaned Evariste, "foiled, detected, exposed and beggared!"

"Have come to me at last, as I knew you would," Laure finished his sentence with the assurance of one who viewed a result of her own designing.

The listlessness of early Sunday morning was unbroken until the dust of the road began to be stirred by the faithful going to the 10 o'clock mass at the Mansura church. They were in greater numbers than on ordinary Sundays, for the desire to hear Father Grhe tell of the marvelous reappearance of Oakfell was universal. Of course, Quillebert's absence was not noticed, nor was any importance attached by those who observed it to the fact that the door of his house, opening inward, was partly ajar, though no movement or sign of life was about the place. It was only at noon, when the cavalcade of worshippers was returning from the service, that Dr. De Roux stopped to speak with him concerning the sale of the previous day. Having knocked and waited in vain for response, he pushed the door against a heavy but yielding obstruction and stepped inside. An instant later he sprang back upon the veranda with an exclamation of horror and, gesticulating wildly, summoned the passersby. A spectacle which froze the marrow met their eyes. Behind the door stretched the corpse of Constant Quillebert, the head, crushed and battered, lying in a pool of thick, drying blood. A hatchet into the helve of which were cut the in-

NANCY HANNIGAN'S SUITORS.

By Seumas MacManus.

Copyright, 1901, by Seumas MacManus.

NANCY HANNIGAN was the one daughter of Seumas and Nelly Hannigan. Nancy as she grew up developed such an attractive appearance that she was dubbed "the flower of Dhrimmore." Ere yet Nancy was mature she had to go the way of the young women (and young men, too) of our Donegal seaboard—she had to go over the mountains to hire with the Scotch planters who owned the big rich farms by the valley of the Finn. Nancy being of such tender years, so inexperienced of the world, and, still worse, possessing the fatality of exceptional beauty, Seumas and Nelly were loath to let her go. But, despite a little fishing and a little tilling, want gave an occasional knock at Seumas' door, as at the doors of his neighbors, so perforce poor Nancy must face the world.

With a very large store of advice and warning, the only commodities her mother could afford to be liberal with; a very small store of clothes, done up in a red handkerchief, and her father's and mother's blessing, Nancy took the road with the other poor boys and girls just before the sun began to rub the mists off his eyes and peep up over the shoulder of Barnesmore mountain on a Friday morning and trudged 36 miles before bedtime and stood in the Rabble market in Strabane next day waiting for some one to come and hire her.

Several big rough farmers and some rougher farmers' wives had come up and viewed Nancy at every angle of observation, quizzed, questioned and cross questioned her, putting her through the catechism of her abilities, and then priced her and haggled with her, trying to beat her down 5 shillings in the half year's wage, and quitted her, giving their opinion that she was too delicate for a girl's work in the Laigan, which included wrestling with tubs and pots of boiled roots, feeding cows and pigs, milking, churning and butter making. Finally an imposing old lady of generous girth and evidently of higher social status than the farmer's wife came up and, raising her glasses, viewed Nancy calmly and critically and then trotted her through the usual catechism. Mrs. Neilson, it turned out, did not require a pot wren, but a dairymaid, and, Nancy and Nancy's price suited her, they quickly agreed as mistress and maid, and Mrs. Neilson's son, a bashful young man, than whom Nancy vowed she never before had seen any one so exquisitely dressed, drove them home in a buggy.

Mrs. Neilson took much pains showing Nancy her work next morning, and when this had been done to the satisfaction of both she led Nancy to the parlor and, sinking into an easy chair, began to read her a homily upon the conduct she expected of all females under her roof. The bashful and nice young man, as primly dressed as ever, read a book by the window. Though he glanced at Nancy as he came in, he was either too modest or too much absorbed in the book to raise his eyes a second time. Two virtues ever possessed by Nancy were docility and respectfulness, but under Mrs. Neilson's lecturing tongue she had much ado to keep down a rebellious spirit that for the first time moved within her.

"For, you know," the good Mrs. Neilson tried to impress upon her, "you girls who come here from those wild mountains have to be taught the proprieties necessary to young women, which, I fear, are sadly left out in your bringing up." Nancy flushed. "Your parents, it seems to me, dear, allow you to grow wild, with the result that you come over the mountains into our country so hoidenish that it takes much of our time and trouble to civilize you and to teach you Christianlike conduct." Here Nancy gave her head a most indignant little toss, which was quite lost upon her mentor, who was either so absorbed with her own discourse that she didn't see it or else, seeing it, took it as a matter of course.

"And now one thing in particular I want to impress on you is to warn you against giving our Tommy any encouragement." Nancy looked at Mrs. Neilson in amazement. "Tommy is my eldest boy and sadly differs from Alexander here," indicating the young man who read and who blushed in response to the implied compliment—"is sadly different, I'm sorry to say, from Alexander. Tommy is a harum scarum, of whom we never could make anything, for he couldn't be got to mind his books. Tommy will go to the other side of the parish after a pretty face, and the only objection I can yet find with you is that I'm positive you won't finds "C. Q." was under the left arm. To its reddened blade short, coarse hairs were glued. The iron safe in his bedroom stood opened. His books and loose sheets of accounts were on a table and scattered about the floor. The lid of his strong box was thrown back. The paper money paid to him by Dr. De Roux the day before was gone. His gold money was gone. His French money was gone. Laure was gone! Evariste was gone!

With her hands under her apron Nancy dropped a sarcastic courtesy and said, "I'm sure I'm very thankful to ye, ma'am."

"Now, mind you give that boy no encouragement. My heart's nigh broken with him," and she gave a faint sigh, "and indeed but that I have the comfort and consolation of possessing my own wise, good Alexander I think it would be quite broken long ago. Now you have got your warning, dear"—Nancy dropped a haughty courtesy—"and mind you keep that boy at arm's length, for emphatically I'll not tolerate my servant girls courting with my son."

Nancy tossed her head again and flashed a look at Mrs. Neilson. She felt that she would like to deliver herself of a piece of her mind, but poor Nancy likewise felt that if she spoke she would say something hot and hasty, for which she would certainly be sorry afterward, so wisely she restrained herself. A hot blush overspread her cheeks. She thanked her mistress bitterly and whisked from her presence.

"Heigho!" Nancy sighed as she scrubbed a big plunge churn in the dairy later on the same day.

"Heigho!" was echoed back as from a breast weighted with trouble.

Nancy, startled, looked up and beheld a rakish, dashing fellow seated on one of the milk crocks which stood on the table. He was laughing heartily at the start he had given her.

"Hello, Nancy!" he said when he could.

Nancy had been more than half inclined to laugh at first, his countenance was so humorous and his manner so catching, but she remembered Mrs. Neilson's warning, so she replied tartly:

"Indeed an my name comes glib to ye, doesn't it, or not?"

"Well, the quicker ye get rid o' that notion the better. Who are ye, or what are ye, or what's yer business here?"

"That's right, now. I like that, Nancy. That's coming plank down to business at once. Well, I'm Tommy. I'm a harum scarum good for nothing—at least so the old woman says, and she should know—and my business here is to court you."

Nancy flung the churn scrubber at him by way of reply to his audacity, and Tommy caught it deftly. He dismounted from his position and, approaching Nancy, returned the brush with a mock bow, then turned to her the back of his bent head, saying:

"Perhaps you would like to ease your distressed mind by punishing Tommy?"

Nancy without any delay drew him across the head a smart whack of the brush, causing him to jump up with a yell and execute a good imitation of an Indian war dance around herself and the churn, rubbing and scratching the back of his head the while.

"That's for yer impudence," Nancy said when he quitted.

"Oh, you duck! Shouldn't I like to be thrashed every day for just such a vision as your sweet self!"

"In troth," said Nancy, "if ye provoke me to go practicin my wrist on ye again ye'll maybe find it's little o' the vision's about it—or at least it's the sort o' vision that leaves blisters behind it."

"Nancy, mavourneen, it's I who know that, for already there's a blister on my heart the size of your shoe—the size of my own shoe, I mean."

"Be off, I say, or I'll raise them the size o' yer head—an that's big enough—on the ribs of ye. Be off, I tell ye!"

"And I can't go, I tell ye!" accompanied by such a travesty on an ogre that Nancy was compelled to laugh.

"It wasn't enough for yer mother to warn me against ye, I suppose, an tell me the sort o' villain ye were an the thricks ye do be up to."

"Nancy, agraah, I wish the next time you find my mother preaching against courting you'd just only ask her quietly if she never did it herself and did she get the man sent down from heaven in a hand basket of a morning."

"Go ask her yerself, ye rascal! Aren't ye every bit as big an as ugly as me to do the business?"

"Ah-h-h, Nancy, avilish!"

"Begone, for the common nuisance ye are!" And by means of a very vigorous assault on him with the scrubbing brush Nancy whacked him out of the door and slammed it in his face.

As she got at her work again he was sending a parting salute through the keyhole:

"Yes, Nancy, darling, I'm gone—gone to patch together as best I can the smithereens of a smashed heart. With that cruel brush of yours ye've made very small pieces of it. If I can get it into any sort of presentable order, I'll be back for another court tomorrow. 'Till then adieu!"

"Then the devil go with ye!" Nancy shouted.

"A purty boy indeed ye are," she went on smilingly, soliloquizing as she wrought—"A purty boy, troth! An small wonder yer own mother had to warn me against ye. If ye come to keep me from work the morra, I'm afear'd it isn't the scrubbin brush I'll be usin on ye. No; I'll be after takin to ye somethin a thrife weightier—somethin that'll make ye larn yer place an keep it."

"He's been interfering with you, I see, the rascal that he is."

It was Alexander, the bashful, who surprised Nancy this time, only Nancy noted that, though solemn enough, he did not look quite so bashful as he had done in his mother's presence.

"Ha, ha, ha!" Nancy laughed. "Not a bit of interference, only just crackin a joke to keep me from feelin homesick. Intherferin! Hag! Not him! He wouldn't interfere with a mouse, I do believe. It's the gay heart an the light wan he has, God bless him!"

"And so," Alexander said, moving closer up to Nancy and looking into her blue eyes sympathetically—"and so you are feeling 'long' and lonesome after home?"

"A.L. not much—not much!" she said in a tone which, interpreted, meant "A great deal."

"Well, now, Nancy, my dear," and he laid a hand gently on her shoulder—"Nancy, my dear, we must do our best to be kind to you and keep the feeling of 'long' away from you."

Nancy was touched by the feeling expression of such real sympathy. She cast down her eyes as she said:

"I'm sure I must be forever obliged to ye, sir, for yer good heartedness to the stranger."

"My dear Nancy"—here he sat him on the edge of the churn and looked across into Nancy's pretty face—"don't say stranger. You're not to feel strange

here. You're not to make strange with any one, except, of course, the villain Tommy. By all means you must make strange with that fellow. You must observe mother's good advice regarding him. But you are not to feel strange with me, for instance. And he laid a hand affectionately on Nancy's head.

"I'm forever obliged," Nancy said in the thankfulness of her heart.

"For you know, Nancy," he continued, jocosely wagging a forefinger at her, "I shouldn't like a young girl with such a beautiful head of hair"—here he stroked it—"and such eyes"—and he gazed into their depths—"to feel strange with me."

A puzzled look overspread Nancy's countenance.

"And," Alexander went on, "I should certainly not like such lips to tell it to me." He wound this up by a playful attempt to chuck Nancy under the chin. Nancy, slipping back, drew herself up in an attitude of indignation.

"What!" he said, surprised. "And the pose of a Greek goddess, by all that's beautiful!" He stepped toward her in admiration and attempted to lay his arm around her waist.

Instantly Nancy's little hand shot up more rapidly than he could have been prepared for, and with the back of it she drew him a sounding smack along the mouth, which stopped him in mingled amazement and pain.

When he got his breath again, "Well, upon my solemn word, you dery Nancy,

your sweet lips must soothe what your wicked hand has made smart." And he made a dash at her.

But Nancy, clutching at a butter spade, struck out and hit him a sounding rap squarely on the nose, making blood spurt and bringing the gallant Alexander to a dead stop.

He clapped both hands to his nose. Nancy, who could not help smiling through her indignation, still stood at bay watching the brave fellow nurse his nose, and at that instant Mrs. Neilson's voice was heard, just without the door, crying back to the kitchenmaid directions about dinner. Alexander threw up his hands in alarm.

"Nancy, upon my soul, I'm undone!" Rapidly his eye ran around the dairy, but few hiding places were there. His glance fell upon the big churn. He whisked off the lid and jumped in. Ere his head disappeared he paused, while he whispered:

"Nancy, Nancy, I'm your friend from this day—if you say nothing." Then the head disappeared and the lid was pulled down to its position within the churn.

Poor Nancy was swayed between indignation, amazement and laughter at the ludicrous denouement, and it is more than probable that laughter, and right hearty laughter, would have claimed her had not Mrs. Neilson then come sailing in.

"Well, little girl, are you standing idle? Why aren't you at work? Don't commence to mope, thinking of home now." And Mrs. Neilson fussed around the dairy. "You know that's not what I'm paying you extravagant wages for. Nor were you ever quartered so well at home, away in those wild mountains, as you are here, with plenty to eat and not too much to do, only you must always keep your hands going. What are you working at now? What? And you haven't finished with the churn yet? Oh, dear! What are servant girls useful for now, except to get in one's way? Have you given it the second scalding yet? No? What's this to do? What's this to do? Is the kettle boiled? Here, stand out of my way! Old woman as I am, I'm as good as half a dozen of the sort of girls going nowadays. Out of my way! Out of my way! And pray observe how I scald a churn, for I'll venture my word you have to be taught it. Pough! Deary me, it's roasting!"

And Mrs. Neilson, letting go the kettle she had essayed to lift, now protected her hand with her apron and bore off to the churn the steaming and hissing kettle.

She rested it on the rim of the churn. "Now, observe, my girl—What? Do you think it is only for your amusement I do this, that you stand grinning?" Nancy drew as long a face as she could assume. "Observe. You first pass the water round the edges of the lid this way, and"—

"Oh! Oh! Oh! Oh!" An unearthly yell ascended from out the bowels of the churn, the lid shot up in the face of the screaming Mrs. Neilson, a dripping human head dashed after, forth jumped a man, and at a bound, leaping clear over the prostrate form of his mother, the wise, the studious, the good and bashful and well scalded Alexander burst screaming through the door.

TEARS FOR SCHLEY.

Even Court Showed Emotion During Rayner's Eloquent Speech.

JUDGES SHOOK SCHLEY'S HAND.

Even Judge Advocate Lemly Stepped Forward to Show His Sympathy. Accused Man Had Hard Time Suppressing His Own Emotion.

Washington, Nov. 7.—The climax of the Schley court of inquiry came when Mr. Rayner, the chief counsel for Admiral Schley, concluded a brilliant argument of over three hours with a peroration so eloquent and impassioned that within the sound of his voice were profoundly touched. This remarkable trial, he said, sought to condemn the man who had brought to a successful termination as great a naval triumph as ever was won. In vivid colors he painted the picture of the Brooklyn, with Commodore Schley on the bridge, fighting the entire Spanish fleet until the Oregon appeared out of the smoke. The thunders of the Brooklyn, music for the ears of his countrymen, he said, aroused Admiral Schley's envious foes. He pictured the victorious sailor suffering as few have suffered for three long years while the fires of persecution leaped around him and now awaiting the hour of his vindication in the verdict of the court.

"And when it comes," he concluded, "he can, from the high and exalted position that he occupies, look down upon his traducers and maligners and with excellent pride exclaim: 'I care not for the venomous gossip of clubs, drawing rooms and cliques and the poisoned shafts of envy and of malice. I await under the guidance of Divine Providence the verdict of posterity.'"

Remarkable Scenes Occurred.

The scene in the court room as he finished with these words was thrilling. The attendance had been large all day, and at the morning session a lady had fainted from excitement. As Mr. Rayner began his eulogy of Admiral Schley those in the audience, many of whom were ladies, leaned forward in their seats. The spell of his oratory was over them, and when he described the admiral's gallant deeds and the long persecution to which he had been subjected many of them broke down and wept. The members of the court displayed evidences of emotion and Admiral Schley himself was plainly moved. He sat, leaning back with his hands behind his head. His chin twitched, and as his counsel said he could afford to wait the verdict of posterity two big tears rolled down his cheeks. He moved uneasily to conceal his emotion, and under the pretense of adjusting his glasses brushed the tears aside. For full 30 seconds after Mr. Rayner closed there was not a sound. Then the tension broke in a loud burst of applause.

Admiral Dewey, after about half a minute, arose to remind the spectators that such a demonstration was out of place. A moment afterward the court adjourned, the judge advocate pleading that he could not well go on yesterday. Then another remarkable thing happened. As soon as the gavel fell the entire audience surged forward to shake the hands of Admiral Schley and Mr. Rayner. But the oncoming spectators fell back a moment as they saw Admiral Dewey and his two associates move around the table, as if by a common impulse, and congratulate Admiral Schley and his counsel. Even Captain Lemly, the judge advocate, came forward to join in the congratulations. Then the public had its innings, and for 15 minutes after the court adjourned Admiral Schley and Mr. Rayner were kept busy shaking hands.

Some Points of Speech.

Mr. Rayner's argument yesterday consumed the whole day of the court, except for half an hour at the opening, which Captain Parker, his associate counsel, occupied in concluding.

RED NOSE.

Sure Sign of Bad Blood—Can Be Cured with Blood Wine.

Many of our Citizens Thus Afflicted Are Obtaining Wonderful Results from this Great Remedy.

Red nose, red, flushed face, pimply skin, sallow complexion, and sores all belong in the same class, known as diseases of the blood. There is really no excuse for a person suffering with these disfigurements, because the proper treatment brought to bear on the blood will quickly correct them. "Blood Wine" cures disease by working on the blood. It makes new blood and extracts from it the poisonous matter that creates sores etc. It literally permeates the blood with new life. It causes redness of the skin to gradually disappear and the tint of health to return. It makes sores, ulcers and pimples dry up and fade away. Its action on the blood is never failing.

This is a picture of Mr. Geo. A. Carter, one of Worcester's leading business men and a power in the industrial life of Massachusetts, who says:

"I am much pleased to be able to give my testimony as to the worth and curative properties of 'Blood Wine.' Having used this remedy for more than a year, I can truthfully say it is the best medicine I have ever used for the blood. I would not be without it at any price. After using the first bottle I was greatly benefited, and my entire system seemed renewed with energy, health, and strength before I had finished my second bottle. I can heartily and conscientiously recommend it for old or young as being a remedy that will not disappoint you."

You should try this great medicine; you will feel the effect of it the moment it strikes the stomach. "Blood Wine" contains no wine or opiates. It is not a temporary relief but an everlasting cure. "Blood Wine" costs fifty cents a bottle, but you can sample it free of charge at Will Reed and Hodson's drug stores.

ing. Mr. Rayner took up the specifications one by one, reserving those relating to the retrograde movement until the last. So far as he was able to do so he used the testimony of the department's witnesses to prove his contentions. With regard to the retrograde movement, which he discussed with greater seriousness than the other specifications, he adduced in justification not only Admiral Schley's reasons for believing the Spanish fleet was not in Santiago, but argued that every officer charged with the responsibility of command necessarily must be clothed with discretion in carrying out instructions. He displayed good temper in advertent to the testimony of most of the officers, especially the ranking officers, who seemed to contradict his client, giving them in each case credit for honesty of purpose. But with a few he dwelt unsparringly. Hood, Potts and Bristol he held up to ridicule. Captain Lemly will begin the closing argument this afternoon, as the court will not hold a session this morning.

NOW WIFE OF GEN. CORBIN.

Miss Edith Patten and the Soldier United—Cardinal Gibbons Officiated.

Washington, Nov. 7.—In the presence of a distinguished company, representing the military and civil life of the capital, Miss Edith Patten became the bride of Major General Henry C. Corbin, adjutant general of the United States. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride in Massachusetts avenue by Cardinal Gibbons, assisted by the Rev. Dr. D. J. Stafford, of St. Patrick's church, this city.

Miss Patten was attended by her sisters, the Misses Josephine and Helen Patten, and was given away by Senator John P. Jones, of Nevada, a life-long friend of her father. General Corbin was accompanied by Colonel George R. Dyer, of New York, as his best man. Grouped before the contracting couple were the president of the United States, Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Alice Roosevelt, nearly all of the cabinet members and their ladies, the diplomatic corps, and scores of officers of the army and navy, all in glittering full dress uniform.

The bride was gown in heavy white satin, in train, soft folds of light tulle forming a yoke which was bordered by a deep fall of point d'alencón lace, the lace also finishing the cuffs, the sleeves being cut in the full fashion nowprev ailing. The gown was high necked and the veil fell to the edge of the train.

After the ceremony and reception a breakfast was served in the dining room. The table was laid in silver and glass and adorned with two large wedding cakes buried in pink and white chrysanthemums.

CARNEGIE DON'T BELIEVE IT.

Refers to Rumor That King Edward Offered Him a Baronetcy.

New York, Nov. 7.—Seen at the St. Andrew's golf links, in reference to the report that King Edward had offered him or would offer him a baronetcy, Andrew Carnegie said:

"Why, that's all nonsense. I don't believe there is a word of truth in it. I suppose I would have an inkling of it if anything like that were going to be done."

SEEKING THE PLUMS.

Candidates For Legislative Offices Already In Ohio Capital.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS SENTIMENT.

Considered by Leaders of Both Sides, as Cause of Big Republican Plurality—Daugherty Also Ascribes the McKinley Assassination.

Columbus, O., Nov. 7.—With almost complete returns in last night, it is noted that the Republican plurality beats all records in what has become known as the quadrennial "off year," and, with two exceptions, the records of other years. In the "off years," or those following the presidential election, the Democrats have carried Ohio, the exceptions being in 1881, after the death of Garfield, and in 1885 and 1893, after the Cleveland elections. In two of these three exceptional years the president was a Democrat, and those were considered "off years" for the Democrats. With the single exception of Hoadley, in 1883, the Democrats never elected a governor of Ohio in any other than "off years" since the Republican party originated, and then they won on a local issue of liquor taxation.

Lost on Local Issues.

Wherever local issues were paramount this year, the Republicans sustained losses, notably at Columbus on account of local option, and at Cleveland, on account of Mayor Johnson's agitation of "taxation inequalities." Where no such conditions were confronted the Republicans made gains, and they carried some Democratic counties that never before were represented by Republicans. The state was carried on national issues involved in the support of President Roosevelt and the endorsement of Senator Foraker for re-election. In interviews, Senator Hanna, Governor Nash and Chairman Dick, of the Republican side, and Colonel Kilbourne, Chairman Daugherty and Secretary Gilliam, on the Democratic side, agree that the result was due to trend of sentiment on National affairs, and none of these six leaders or others in interviews on the result refer to the silver question as a factor in the figures.

Chairman Daugherty added with emphasis:

"I believe Republican success is due to the assassination of McKinley and the prevailing prosperity."

Secretary Gilliam said: "The sympathy aroused by McKinley's death just before the election removed that antagonism which always exists among the opposition to the administration. There are thousands who will do things out of regard to the recently dead, who in a year's time will almost have forgotten that they ever lived. Undoubtedly we were greatly handicapped by our inability to go upon the stump and criticize the policies of the administration. As the Republican party has been credited with the present prosperity, so it will be held strictly accountable for the reverse, and when this shall occur, as it is bound to do, they will be swept completely from power."

After Legislative Offices.

This city already is visited by many Republican candidates for clerkships and other places in the organization of the legislature in January. Among the candidates for the speakership are Representatives Cole, Crafts, Cummings, McKisson, Pollock, Panter, Price, Thomas and Willis. Owing to the Republicans succeeding unexpectedly in some Democratic counties there is quite a number of "unknown quantities" in these contests.

Late last night Chairman Dick, of the Republican state committee, had returns from 86 counties in Ohio, with only two missing, and the two missing counties were estimated from the newspaper reports, with the following results:

Sixty-two counties have Republican pluralities aggregating 90,840. Twenty-six counties have Democratic pluralities aggregating 23,179, making the plurality of Nash over Kilbourne for governor 67,661, and approximately $9,000 plurality for other candidates on the Republican state ticket. The total vote will not exceed 900,000, but it will not be known exactly until the vote shall be counted officially. The plurality of Governor Nash exceeds that of two years ago, when he was elected by 49,023, and the average plurality of the candidates on the Republican state ticket greatly exceeds that for president last year, when McKinley and Roosevelt had a plurality in Ohio of 59,030.

How Legislature Stands.

The Republicans elected 68 Representatives and the Democrats 42. The state senate stands 21 Republicans and 12 Democrats. The Republican majority on joint ballot for United States senator is 35. The official count will not change these figures or the political complexion of the legislature, but the Republicans say they expect the official count slightly to increase their plurality on the state ticket.

NEBRASKA.

Lincoln, Nov. 7.—About a third of counties heard from complete or nearly complete. If ratio of gain continues, Sedgewick (Rep.), for supreme judge, may have 12,000 plurality.

IN OTHER STATES.

Kansas—Republicans generally successful. South Dakota—Republicans claim eight circuit judges.

Utah—Republicans carried Salt Lake City.

Connecticut—Of delegates to constitutional convention, of 165 towns, 165 show 105 Republicans, 44 Democrats, 16 non-partisan.

Massachusetts—Crane (Rep.), for governor, by 70,304.

Obstructions In the Nose.

Very many young children have the bad habit of pushing small, hard substances, as shoe buttons, beans or pens, into the ears or nostrils. A simple way to remove an object from the nose is to compress the opposite side and make the child blow his nose violently. If he will not do this, induce a sneeze by tickling the nostrils with a feather, blade of grass or some fluffy substance. If this, too, is not successful, a little pepper or snuff should be used. A hard sneeze will probably remove the obstruction, but always keep the opposite side of the nose compressed.

If the trouble is in the ear, it is a little more serious and the object more difficult to remove. Insects, bugs, beads or small pebbles may be forced out by gently syringing the ear with warm water or by pouring in a few drops of oil or glycerin, but if the object be large and so tightly wedged in that it cannot be easily removed with the fingers do not tamper with it, but take the child to a good aurist. If the object be a pea or bean, it is better not to use a syringe, as the water will cause it to swell. An old and excellent way to remove these obstructions is to dip a camel's hair brush or small stick which has been tapered off to almost a point in some stout glue. Attach this to the offending body and allow the glue to harden, then gently draw it out. —Harper's Bazar.

TEARS FOR SCHLEY.

Even Court Showed Emotion During Rayner's Eloquent Speech.

JUDGES SHOOK SCHLEY'S HAND.

Even Judge Advocate Lemly Stepped Forward to Show His Sympathy. Accused Man Had Hard Time Suppressing His Own Emotion.

Washington, Nov. 7.—The climax of the Schley court of inquiry came when Mr. Rayner, the chief counsel for Admiral Schley, concluded a brilliant argument of over three hours with a peroration so eloquent and impassioned that all within the sound of his voice were profoundly touched. This remarkable trial, he said, sought to condemn the man who had brought to a successful termination as great a naval triumph as ever was won. In vivid colors he painted the picture of the Brooklyn, with Commodore Schley on the bridge, fighting the entire Spanish fleet until the Oregon appeared out of the smoke. The thunders of the Brooklyn, music for the ears of his countrymen, he said, aroused Admiral Schley's envious foes. He pictured the victorious sailor suffering as few have suffered for three long years while the fires of persecution leaped around him and now awaiting the hour of his vindication in the verdict of the court.

"And when it comes," he concluded, "he can, from the high and exalted position that he occupies, look down upon his traducers and maligners and with excellent pride exclaim: 'I care not for the venomous gossip of clubs, drawing rooms and cliques and the poisoned shafts of envy and of malice. I await under the guidance of Divine Providence the verdict of posterity.'"

Remarkable Scenes Occurred. The scene in the court room as he finished with these words was thrilling. The attendance had been large all day, and at the morning session a lady had fainted from excitement. As Mr. Rayner began his eulogy of Admiral Schley those in the audience, many of whom were ladies, leaned forward in their seats. The spell of his oratory was over them, and when he described the admiral's gallant deeds and the long persecution to which he had been subjected many of them broke down and wept. The members of the court displayed evidences of emotion and Admiral Schley himself was plainly moved. He sat, leaning back, with his hands behind his head. His chin twitched, and as his counsel said he could afford to wait the verdict of posterity two big tears rolled down his cheeks. He moved uneasily to conceal his emotion, and under the pretense of adjusting his glasses brushed the tears aside. For full 30 seconds after Mr. Rayner closed there was not a sound. Then the tension broke in a loud burst of applause.

Admiral Dewey, after about half a minute, arose to remind the spectators that such a demonstration was out of place. A moment afterward the court adjourned, the judge advocate pleading that he could not well go on yesterday. Then another remarkable thing happened. As soon as the gavel fell the entire audience surged forward to shake the hands of Admiral Schley and Mr. Rayner. But the oncoming spectators fell back a moment as they saw Admiral Dewey and his two associates move around the table, as if by a common impulse, and congratulate Admiral Schley and his counsel. Even Captain Lemly, the judge advocate, came forward to join in the congratulations. Then the public had its innings, and for 15 minutes after the court adjourned Admiral Schley and Mr. Rayner were kept busy shaking hands.

Some Points of Speech. Mr. Rayner's argument yesterday consumed the whole day of the court, except for half an hour at the opening, which Captain Parker, his associate counsel, occupied in concluding.

RED NOSE.

Sure Sign of Bad Blood—Can Be Cured with Blood Wine.

Many of our Citizens Thus Afflicted Are Obtaining Wonderful Results from this Great Remedy.

Red nose, red, flushed face, pimply skin, sallow complexion, and sores all belong in the same class, known as diseases of the blood. There is really no excuse for a person suffering with these disfigurements, because the proper treatment brought to bear on the blood will quickly correct them. "Blood Wine" cures disease by working on the blood. It makes new blood and extracts from it the poisonous matter that creates sores, etc. It literally permeates the blood with new life. It causes redness of the skin to gradually disappear and the tint of health to return. It makes sores, ulcers and pimples dry up and fade away. Its action on the blood is never failing.

This is a picture of Mr. Geo. A. Carter, one of Worcester's leading business men and a power in the industrial life of Massachusetts, who says:

"I am much pleased to be able to give my testimony as to the worth and curative properties of 'Blood Wine.' Having used this remedy for more than a year, I can truthfully say it is the best medicine I have ever used for the blood. I would not be without it at any price. After using the first bottle I was greatly benefited, and my entire system seemed renewed with energy, health, and strength before I had finished my second bottle. I can heartily and conscientiously recommend it for old or young as being a remedy that will not disappoint you."

You should try this great medicine; you will feel the effect of it the moment it strikes the stomach. "Blood Wine" contains no wine or opiates. It is not a temporary relief but an everlasting cure. "Blood Wine" costs fifty cents a bottle, but you can sample it free of charge at Will Reed and Hodson's drug stores.

ing. Mr. Rayner took up the specifications one by one, reserving those relating to the retrograde movement until the last. So far as he was able to do so he used the testimony of the department's witnesses to prove his contentions. With regard to the retrograde movement, which he discussed with greater seriousness than the other specifications, he adduced in justification not only all Admiral Schley's reasons for believing the Spanish fleet was not in Santiago, but argued that every officer charged with the responsibility of command necessarily must be clothed with discretion in carrying out instructions. He displayed good temper in adverting to the testimony of most of the officers, especially the ranking officers, who seemed to contradict his client, giving them in each case credit for honesty of purpose. But with a few he dwelt unsparringly. Hood, Potts and Bristol he held up to ridicule.

Captain Lemly will begin the closing argument this afternoon, as the court will not hold a session this morning.

Washington, Nov. 7.—In the presence of a distinguished company, representing the military and civic life of the capital, Miss Edith Patten became the bride of Major General Henry C. The gown was high necked and the veil fell to the edge of the train.

After the ceremony and reception a breakfast was served in the dining room. The table was laid in silver and glass and adorned with two large wedding cakes buried in pink and white chrysanthemums.

SEEKING THE PLUMS.

Candidates For Legislative Offices Already In Ohio Capital.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS SENTIMENT.

Considered by Leaders of Both Sides, as Cause of Big Republican Plurality—Daugherty Also Ascribes the McKinley Assassination.

Columbus, O., Nov. 7.—With almost complete returns in last night, it is noted that the Republican plurality beats all records in what has become known as the quadrennial "off year," and, with two exceptions, the records of other years. In the "off years," or those following the presidential election, the Democrats have carried Ohio, the exceptions being in 1881, after the death of Garfield, and in 1885 and 1893, after the Cleveland elections. In two of these three exceptional years the president was a Democrat, and those were considered "off years" for the Democrats. With the single exception of Hoadley, in 1883, the Democrats never elected a governor of Ohio in any other than "off years" since the Republican party originated, and then they won on a local issue of liquor taxation.

Lost on Local Issues.

Wherever local issues were paramount this year, the Republicans sustained losses, notably at Columbus on account of local option, and at Cleveland, on account of Mayor Johnson's agitation of "taxation inequalities." Where no such conditions were confronted the Republicans made gains, and they carried some Democratic counties that never before were represented by Republicans. The state was carried on national issues involved in the support of President Roosevelt and the endorsement of Senator Foraker for re-election. In interviews, Senator Hanna, Governor Nash and Chairman Dick, of the Republican side, and Colonel Kilbourne, Chairman Daugherty and Secretary Gilliam, on the Democratic side, agree that the result was due to trend of sentiment on National affairs, and none of these six leaders or others in interviews on the result refer to the silver question as a factor in the figures.

Chairman Daugherty added with emphasis: "I believe Republican success is due to the assassination of McKinley and the prevailing prosperity."

Secretary Gilliam said: "The sympathy aroused by McKinley's death just before the election removed that antagonism which always exists among the opposition to the administration. There are thousands who will do things out of regard to the recently dead, who in a year's time will almost have forgotten that they ever lived. Undoubtedly we were greatly handicapped by our inability to go upon the stump and criticize the policies of the administration. As the Republican party has been credited with the present prosperity, so it will be held strictly accountable for the reverse, and when this shall occur, as it is bound to do, they will be swept completely from power."

After Legislative Offices.

This city already is visited by many Republican candidates for clerkships and other places in the organization of the legislature in January. Among the candidates for the speakership are Representatives Cole, Crafts, Cummings, McKisson, Pollock, Panter, Price, Thomas and Willis. Owing to the Republicans succeeding unexpectedly in some Democratic counties there is quite a number of "unknown quantities" in these contests.

Late last night Chairman Dick, of the Republican state committee, had returns from 86 counties in Ohio, with only two missing, and the two missing counties were estimated from the newspaper reports, with the following results:

Sixty-two counties have Republican pluralities aggregating 90,840. Twenty-six counties have Democratic pluralities aggregating 23,179, making the plurality of Nash over Kilbourne for governor 67,661, and approximating $9,000 plurality for other candidates on the Republican state ticket. The total vote will not exceed 900,000, but it will not be known exactly until the vote shall be counted officially. The plurality of Governor Nash exceeds that of two years ago, when he was elected by 49,023, and the average plurality of the candidates on the Republican state ticket greatly exceeds that for president last year, when McKinley and Roosevelt had a plurality in Ohio of 59,030.

How Legislature Stands.

The Republicans elected 68 Representatives and the Democrats 42. The state senate stands 21 Republicans and 12 Democrats. The Republican majority on joint ballot for United States senator is 35. The official count will not change these figures or the political complexion of the legislature, but the Republicans say they expect the official count slightly to increase their plurality on the state ticket.

NEBRASKA.

Lincoln, Nov. 7.—About a third of counties heard from complete or nearly complete. If ratio of gain continues, Sedgewick (Rep.), for supreme judge, may have 12,000 plurality.

IN OTHER STATES.

Kansas—Republicans generally successful. South Dakota—Republicans claim eight circuit judges.

Utah—Republicans carried Salt Lake City.

Connecticut—Of delegates to constitutional convention, of 163 towns, 165 show 105 Republicans, 44 Democrats, 16 non-partisan.

Massachusetts—Crane (Rep.), for governor, by 70,304.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

New Car Arrives—Another new street car arrived at noon for the East Liverpool line. It is 10 feet longer than those recently purchased.

A Dog Poisoned—A very valuable smooth head pointer dog belonging to Sidney Starkey, was poisoned yester- day. Mr. Starkey valued the animal at $50.

Will Practice Tonight—The Y. M. C. A. foot ball team will meet at 6:30 this evening for practice. Tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock they will prac- tice at the park.

"Crip" Again Raising "Cain"—Milo Cain, better known as "Crip," is be- ing sought by the police. It is alleged he kicked in a door of Elizabeth Sheetz's home and was otherwise dis- orderly.

May Be Difficult—The new line of the Ohio Valley Gas company which is being laid across the Ohio river at the head of Babbs Island has been com- pleted to the channel on the Virginia side of the island. The company will probably experience some difficulty in laying the pipe over the channel, as there is nine feet of water at that point.

Letters of Administration, Lisbon, November 7.—(Special)— Letters of administration were grant- ed to Elwood Miller in the estate of William Humphrey.

A Queer Experience. An actor and his wife had a funny experience once in Toronto. They were playing a piece in which the wife enacted the part of a woman dentist, and one evening the husband received a note asking him to call at a certain house. He did so the next day and was greeted by the old man and his wife, the latter of whom said to him: "Me and my mate fell in love with your missus last night. She was so gentle with you when you was a-sittin' of the dentist chair, I'm gettin on now, and all my teeth is a-gettin loose, and my mate wants me to go to the dentist shop and 'ave 'em pulled, but I knows as 'ow they 'urts, and I want to know if you and your missus will come around 'ere and 'ave tea with us, 'ave a little singin and enjoy ourselves and your missus before she leaves kindly pull out a few of these old stumps, as I know she'll be as kind and gentle as she was to you."

His Embarrassment. Brackett—They say you are financial- ly embarrassed. Do you owe a very large amount? Crackett—I don't owe anything, but there are several people who owe me, and I haven't the courage to ask for it. —Boston Transcript.

Loneliness and Health. A medical journal has of late been discoursing on the indigestion of lone- liness. By this title is meant to be in- dicated the disorders of digestion which are believed to follow the practice of taking one's meals in solitary state. The topic is by no means an uninter- esting one. Thousands of men and wo- men living alone are compelled to take their meals for the most part without company. Week in and week out they feed themselves without a soul to talk to, and the medical journal devotes its energies to showing that the practice is not one that is likely to be conducive to digestion, to proper bodily nourish- ment or to health. The solitary man soon tires of merely eating, and, if he is not of a literary turn of mind, his tend- ency is to hurry through his meals to escape from his loneliness into the so- ciety of his fellow men. Herein, it is held, lies a danger to health.

Crashes

A very interesting line of bleached and unbleached crashes from 5c to 25c a yard.

Blankets and Comforts

This is good blanket and comfort weather. If interested in this class of merchandise would be pleased to show you the stock. We carry a complete line of the

in white, red, gray and plaids. A better blanket than the "Zanesville" for intrinsic merit, is not in the market. Buy them once, you will buy them again. They are dependable goods, strictly all wool and are priced at $5, $6, $7.50 and $9 a pair.

Cheaper Grades of Wool Blankets

Priced at $2.50, $2.95, $3.50 and $4 a pair.

Comforts

Comforts filled with good white cotton, quilted or tufted, large size at $1, $1.25, $1.50, $2, $2.50 and up to $4 each. Down comforts at $7.50 and $8.50 each.

Underwear

Now is the time to supply yourself with winter underwear. Never showed such an immense stock of underwear for men, women and children, as at the present time and what is better, the values are right.

Ladies' union suits from 50c to $3 each; ladies' vests and pants from 25c to $1.50 a garment; men's shirts and drawers from 39c to $1.50 each; children's underwear from 15c to 75c a garment, with all between prices. Come and inspect the line for your- self. The space here is entirely inadequate to describe it.

Hosiery

Everything desirable for men, women and children's wear in woolen and cotton hosiery. Prices range from 10c to $1.25 a pair.

Golf Gloves

Popular item at the glove counter these days. Better invest now before the assortments are broken. Prices 25c, 35c and 50c a pair.

Change to Change a Quarter.

"How much does it take to change a quarter?" asked the bartender. "Twenty-five cents, eh? Not on your life. It takes seventy cents to do the trick. How many ways do you suppose a quarter dollar can be changed?—Just exactly eleven. A fellow of limited means may like the jingle of coin in his clothes. In that event you can give him twenty-five pennies or twenty pennies and one nickel. He may like to have a little sprinkling of silver in his clothes, and you can accommodate him with fifteen pennies and a dime or ten pennies, a dime and a nickel.

"If he prefers to have change handy for a beer and a car fare, why, fifteen pennies and two nickels will fix him up, and if he wants a cigar in addition, besides having a little stock of cash in his jeans, give him ten pennies and three nickels. That makes six ways. Now, then, a fellow with a quarter can trade it off for five pennies and two dimes, five pennies and four nickels, two dimes and one nickel, one dime and three nickels or five nickels, just as he prefers. And to accommodate him in any way that he might select you have to possess twenty-five pen- nies, two dimes and five nickels—sev- enty cents in all."—Philadelphia Rec- ord.

Pound Foolishness.

One of the commonest forms of pound foolishness is countenanced by many high authorities. This is the purchase of certain household provisions in large quantities. Few writers on domestic topics fail to lay stress upon the econ- omy of buying groceries in bulk. That sugar and flour, potatoes and apples should be bought by the half or whole barrel, cereals by the case, butter by the tub and other things in like propor- tion is one of the early precepts in the "Young Housekeeper's Complete Guide to Domestic Economy."

The ignorant young things buy the provisions first and the experience after- ward. The flour grows musty, the cereals develop weevils, the potatoes and apples rot long before they can be eaten, and the cook exercises a lavish- ness in the use of the butter and sugar she would never show were they bought in such limited amounts that the house- keeper could hold close watch over them. Even after these events the young mistress feels as if she were ab- solutely reckless and no manager at all when she so far departs from house- hold law as to buy food in small quan- tities.—Independent.

man, named Richard Gardner, was the only person who succeeded. The old records read: "He attempted and put into proof to fynde out coles about the town (Shrewsbury) in sondry playcs, and in one place especiall callyd Emat- tine Haye, hard by the sayd towne, he found by his great diligence and troball great store of see cole, the which is lyke to come much commoditie bothe to the riche and poore, that he is not only worthy of commendacion and mayntenance but also to be had in re- membrance for ever."—Cardiff West- ern Mail.

The Russian Climate.

The Russians count upon their cli- mate as one means of defense, as it was when Napoleon invaded Russia. Their troops are accordingly trained in winter maneuvers, including loading a battery, with its war transport and material complete, upon sleighs, mov- ing it for some distance over a difficult, snow covered country and bringing it into action again.

Her Pet Name.

"Ah!" he sighed after she had blush- ingly whispered "Yes" in his bosom. "My own Mehitabel! Oh, that name's so formal! Surely, your friends use some shorter one, some pet name?" "Well," she murmured, "the girls at boarding school used to call me Pic- kles."—Philadelphia Press.

His Mistake.

"What curious mistakes men make sometimes! I've just been reading, for instance, that Columbus imagined that he had discovered the Indies." "Ah, I made a worse mistake than that! When I married my wife, I thought I'd discovered paradise!"

Table Cloths and Napkins for Thanksgiving

No better time in the year than now to replenish your stock of table linens. Showing a complete stock, large in assortments and small in prices, qualities considered.

Bleached Damasks

64 to 72 inches wide, priced at 50c, 75c, 85c, $1, $1.25, $1.50 and $2 a yard. These come in polka dot, clover leaf, pausy and Fleur-de-lis patterns.

84 inch wide bleached damasks at $1.00 a yard. Napkins to match table linens 2 and 3 sizes from $1.00 to $6 a dozen.

Unbleached Table Linens

54 to 72 inches wide, priced at 25c, 35c, 50c, 60c, 75c, 85c and $1.00 a yard.

Crashes

A very interesting line of bleached and unbleached crashes from 5c to 25c a yard.

Blankets and Comforts

This is good blanket and comfort weather. If interested in this class of merchandise would be pleased to show you the stock. We carry a complete line of the

in white, red, gray and plaids. A better blanket than the "Zanesville" for intrinsic merit, is not in the market. Buy them once, you will buy them again. They are dependable goods, strictly all wool and are priced at $5, $6, $7.50 and $9 a pair.

Cheaper Grades of Wool Blankets

Comforts

Comforts filled with good white cotton, quilted or tufted, large size at $1, $1.25, $1.50, $2, $2.50 and up to $4 each. Down comforts at $7.50 and $8.50 each.

Underwear

Now is the time to supply yourself with winter underwear. Never showed such an immense stock of underwear for men, women and children, as at the present time and what is better, the values are right.

Ladies' union suits from 50c to $3 each; ladies' vests and pants from 25c to $1.50 a garment; men's shirts and drawers from 39c to $1.50 each; children's underwear from 15c to 75c a garment, with all between prices. Come and inspect the line for yourself. The space here is entirely inadequate to describe it.

Hosiery

Everything desirable for men, women and children's wear in woolen and cotton hosiery. Prices range from 10c to $1.25 a pair.

Golf Gloves

Popular item at the glove counter these days. Better invest now before the assortments are broken. Prices 25c, 35c and 50c a pair.

Tailor Made Suits, Ladies' and Misses' Coats, Separate Skirts, Flannel Waists and Fine Furs

You are invited to an inspection of these in cloak room.

Change to Change a Quarter.

"How much does it take to change a quarter?" asked the bartender. "Twenty-five cents, eh? Not on your life. It takes seventy cents to do the trick. How many ways do you suppose a quarter dollar can be changed?—Just exactly eleven. A fellow of limited means may like the jingle of coin in his clothes. In that event you can give him twenty-five pennies or twenty pennies and one nickel. He may like to have a little sprinkling of silver in his clothes, and you can accommodate him with fifteen pennies and a dime or ten pennies, a dime and a nickel.

"If he prefers to have change handy for a beer and a car fare, why, fifteen pennies and two nickels will fix him up, and if he wants a cigar in addition, besides having a little stock of cash in his jeans, give him ten pennies and three nickels. That makes six ways. Now, then, a fellow with a quarter can trade it off for five pennies and two dimes, five pennies and four nickels, two dimes and one nickel, one dime and three nickels or five nickels, just as he prefers. And to accommodate him in any way that he might select you have to possess twenty-five pennies, two dimes and five nickels—seventy cents in all."—Philadelphia Record.

Found Foolishness.

One of the commonest forms of pound foolishness is countenanced by many high authorities. This is the purchase of certain household provisions in large quantities. Few writers on domestic topics fail to lay stress upon the economy of buying groceries in bulk. That sugar and flour, potatoes and apples should be bought by the half or whole barrel, cereals by the case, butter by the tub and other things in like proportion is one of the early precepts in the "Young Housekeeper's Complete Guide to Domestic Economy."

The ignorant young things buy the provisions first and the experience afterward. The flour grows musty, the cereals develop weevils, the potatoes and apples rot long before they can be eaten, and the cook exercises a lavishness in the use of the butter and sugar she would never show were they bought in such limited amounts that the housekeeper could hold close watch over them. Even after these events the young mistress feels as if she were absolutely reckless and no manager at all when she so far departs from household law as to buy food in small quantities.—Independent.

Loneliness and Health.

A medical journal has of late been discoursing on the indigestion of loneliness. By this title is meant to be indicated the disorders of digestion which are believed to follow the practice of taking one's meals in solitary state. The topic is by no means an uninteresting one. Thousands of men and women living alone are compelled to take their meals for the most part without company. Week in and week out they feed themselves without a soul to talk to, and the medical journal devotes its energies to showing that the practice is not one that is likely to be conducive to digestion, to proper bodily nourishment or to health. The solitary man soon tires of merely eating, and, if he is not of a literary turn of mind, his tendency is to hurry through his meals to escape from his loneliness into the society of his fellow men. Herein, it is held, lies a danger to health.

Discovery of Coal in Wales.
During the reign of Henry VIII. many attempts were made to discover coal in north Wales, and a Shrewsbury man, named Richard Gardner, was the only person who succeeded. The old records read: "He attempted and put into proof to fynde out coles about the town (Shrewsbury) in sondry places, and in one place especiall called Ematine Haye, hard by the sayd towne, he found by his great diligence and trolball great store of see cole, the which is lyke to come much commoditie bothe to the riche and poore, that he is not only worthy of commendacion and maintenance but also to be had in remembrance for ever."—Cardiff Western Mail.

The Russian Climate.
The Russians count upon their climate as one means of defense, as it was when Napoleon invaded Russia. Their troops are accordingly trained in winter maneuvers, including loading a battery, with its war transport and material complete, upon sleighs, moving it for some distance over a difficult, snow covered country and bringing it into action again.

Her Pet Name.
"Well," she murmured, "the girls at boarding school used to call me Pickles."—Philadelphia Press.

His Mistake.
"What curious mistakes men make sometimes! I've just been reading, for instance, that Columbus imagined that he had discovered the Indies."
"Ah, I made a worse mistake than that! When I married my wife, I thought I'd discovered paradise!"

OCTOGENARIAN GETS SICK RIDING ON CARS.

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 7.—William M. Arnett, of Fairmont, although 84 years of age, walked from that place to this city, a distance of 26 miles, last week, and after spending a few days with his brother, F. M. Arnett, walked back to his home. He says it makes him sick to ride on cars.
